Bruce Heads For Saigon

Makes Stopover On Way To Paris

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador David K. E. Bruce headed for Saigon today and consultations with South Vietnamese leaders before taking over as chief U.S. peace negotiator in Paris.

Bruce and Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. envoy to South Vietnam, left Washington Wednesday following discussions with President Nixon and other officials on projected new U.S. peace proposals at the stalemate Paris talks.

These tentative new proposals reportedly are designed to offer Communist elements in South Vietnam an opportunity to share post-war political power in Saigon as part of an over-all agreement for ending the war and getting both U.S. and North Vietnamese armies out of the country.

Such proposals, implying some kind of future coalition government, are a sore point between the Nixon administration and Saigon.

Bruce presumably wants to form a first-hand impression of President Nguyen Van Thieu's stand on this issue and what proposition Thieu is prepared to accept.

Nixon reportedly has decided to move slowly in presenting new proposals to the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese at Paris. They may not be formulated and introduced before September.

Meanwhile, Ambassador Philip C. Habib returned to Paris Wednesday to continue as acting head of the U.S. team until Bruce takes over. Habib has been chief U.S. negotiator since Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge resigned last December.

The issue of how to form the peacetime government in Saigon, and particularly what assurances might be given the Communists in advance of elections, is regarded by many well-informed diplomats as the central issue of the peace talks.

9 Are Arrested In Drug Raid

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Police raided an apartment in the Ohio State University district Wednesday night, arrested nine persons and confiscated about 30 bags of heroin, officers reported.

Those arrested included Joseph Myers Clifford, 20, son of Franklin County Clerk of Courts Joseph Clifford. Others arrested and also charged with various narcotics offenses were Melvin Lee Cheatwood, 18; Neil A. Van Voorhis, 19, and Phillip Ray Weisheit, 18.

Officers said all four listed the house where the raid was staged as their address. The others arrested were charged as suspicious persons.

Popular Cereals Near Worthless, Probers Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of the most heavily advertised cereals—including Wheaties, Cheerios and the top brands of shredded wheat and corn flakes—have about as much nutritional value as a shot of whisky, Senate investigators were told today.

"In short, they fatten but do little to prevent malnutrition... They have calories and little else," Robert B. Choate, a Washington nutritional specialist, told a Senate consumer subcommittee.

"If a family likes dry cereals and can afford them, there are several with respectable nutritional content," he said in a prepared statement accompanying a detailed study of 60 cereal brands on the market.

"But," he added, "it is apparent in this first of several food industry analyses that as humans are viewed not as beings to be nourished, but as suckers to be sold."

Armed with charts, graphs and samples of television ads programmed for the nation's young, Choate presented a sweeping indictment of the cereal industry and called for a congressional investigation. The industry already is the subject of a Federal Trade Commission probe.

Cereal makers will be given a chance to respond later, subcommittee aides said.

Choate said a frequent defense of the dry-cereal industry takes the form of describing a cereal's nutrient value in combination with sugar and milk.

But, Choate said, his studies showed "the average cereals—those outside of the top 20—fail as a complete meal even with milk added. Even if the amount of cereal were doubled while the milk remained constant, the nutrient value of these meals would still be inadequate."

Choate, a citizen-lobbyist who runs a small consulting firm, has studied the nation's food policies for the past three years. He told the subcommittee that

Court Requested To Determine Battelle Legality

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Franklin County Common Pleas Court was asked by Atty. Gen. Paul W. Brown Wednesday to determine whether Battelle Memorial Institute has complied with the will of its founder, Gordon Battelle.

Brown said an investigation by his office raises doubts about the legality of the $300 million research organization's fiscal policies during the 47 years since Battelle's death.

Battelle, a Columbus industrialist, bequeathed a $1.7 million trust fund to set up the institute, stipulating that the institute's profits over 20 percent of the legacy be distributed to charities.

Brown said in his complaint that "Battelle has not, at any time, distributed any substantial profits to public charities, charitable institutions, needy enterprises or persons or worthy charitable objects and enterprises."

Cab Driver Is Arrested For Murder

MIAMI (AP) — A 37-year-old cab driver caught by a police stakeout at International Airport has been accused of murdering two women hostages in a $2,000 robbery.

Milton Niport was seized at midnight Wednesday as he stepped off a plane which police said he had boarded in Los Angeles.

He was charged with the murders of Dolores Palacino, 42, and Judy Lamb, 40.

The bodies of the two women were found in a lonely field Monday 10 miles from the scene of the early morning robbery, a Western Union branch in Coral Gables. Both had been shot several times in the head.

Police found the bodies after a third victim, Bruce Reitz, dragged himself 1½ miles to a highway. He had been shot twice in the head.

A sketch of the gunman was made from Reitz' description.

"We canvassed the airport and found an airline employee who recognized the composite sketch and said the man had flown out of the city," said Ralph Page, supervisor for the Dade County Public Safety Department.

"We found someone who thought they recognized the sketch," Page continued. "We checked the man and he had a criminal record. We found out he had flown to Atlanta and that he would probably return to the city. We staked out the airport and waited."

Following the arrest, police said they found a .22-caliber handgun behind an air conditioner in Niport's downtown apartment.

The two dead women and Reitz were all shot with a gun of similar caliber, police said.

Heavy Rain Pours Over Southeast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Soaking rains poured into parts of the Southeast today as the remnants of tropical storm Becky drifted across the Appalachians.

Flash-flood warnings were in effect for portions of North Georgia, the western Carolinas, southeastern West Virginia and southwestern Virginia.

The storm swamped Tallahassee, Fla., with more than 8 inches of rain in 24 hours before moving inland. Three inches drenched West Palm Beach in one hour. A similar amount fell on Augusta, Ga. throughout Wednesday.

Lighter rain extended westward through the Ohio and lower Mississippi valleys. One to 2 inches was common in sections of Alabama and eastern Tennessee.

Showers and thunderstorms also splashed over the Rockies in the predawn hours. Strong, gusty winds accompanied many of the storms.

Fair and pleasant weather dominated most of the Far West, a large part of the Mid-continent east of the Rockies and most of the Northeast.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 46 at Bradford, Pa., to 97 at Needles, Calif.

Administration Defends New Environment Agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration, attempting to quell criticism of its proposed environmental super-agency, says coordinating all federal pollution-fighting efforts under one roof will help eliminate vested interests of existing cabinet-level departments.

President Nixon's decision to create a new Environmental Protection Agency—EPA—was based in part "on the need to avoid the institutional biases of existing agencies," Dwight A. Ink, assistant director of the Office of Management and Budget, said Wednesday.

Ink's testimony to a House subcommittee appeared to be a reply to congressional backers of Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel's hope to concentrate government pollution-fighting activities in his department.

Ink told a House government operations subcommittee studying the plan that existing agencies have their own missions which affect their views of environmental matters.

"To vest all the EPA programs in one of those departments is apt to result in a particular slant to those activities and questions as to its objectivity in dealing with matters affecting and controlling other departments," Ink said.

The government is not downgrading antipollution efforts by placing them in a non-Cabinet level agency, he added.

"At present, these programs are placed in such a way that various levels of supervisors exist between them and the Cabinet members, and they must compete for attention with a host of other important departmental activities," Ink said.

Nixon's reorganization plan, signed two weeks ago, pulls most of the antipollution enforcement efforts into the EPA from major government departments. In addition, Nixon created a National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration dealing primarily with environmental research.

Unless Congress acts within 60 days to void the plan, it will become effective.

Rep. John A. Blatnik, D-Minn., subcommittee chairman, said he expects a resolution to set aside the proposal to be introduced.

The base, on a 1,000-foot ridge north of the A Shau Valley and 13 miles from Laos had been in operation for the past 3½ months and had been under mortar siege since July 1.

Troops of the 101st Airborne Division operating in and around the base screened enemy infiltration corridors leading from Laos and North Vietnam toward South Vietnam's northern coast.

As one officer put it, the paratroopers were to "keep track of what's going on and to prevent the North Vietnamese from moving into the lowlands where all the population is."

It was the first time since Nov. 2 that U.S. forces had abandoned a patrol base under enemy pressure and destroyed the guns to keep them out of enemy hands.

On Wednesday the enemy sprang an ambush as the patrol was operating a mile east of the base.

The paratroopers returned the fire and called in fighter-bombers and artillery. The U.S. Command said the enemy withdrew after night fell, but meanwhile North Vietnamese gunners fired five mortar rounds into the base, killing and wounding more Americans. The U.S. Command would not say how many.

It was the largest number of American casualties in a single action since 25 were killed and 29 wounded May 6 in a North Vietnamese attack on another patrol base 12 miles south of the demilitarized zone.

American B52 bombers flew five more missions along the Laotian border Wednesday night, one of them within 20 miles of Ripcord. Some 25 of the big bombers dropped 750 tons of bombs on North Vietnamese base camps and supply depots.

In Phnom Penh, the Cambodian military command indicated that heavily reinforced North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops have virtually surrounded several Cambodian battalions on the Kiri Rom plateau.

The battle for the resort 50 miles southwest of the capital was in its 13th day.

Israeli newspapers denounced the Greek government for capitulating to the hijackers.

While the plane sat on the runway at Athens, the ambassadors from Egypt and Jordan went to the control tower and argued with the hijackers by radio. Onassis rushed to Athens from his private island, Scorpios, where he was vacationing with his wife, the former Jacqueline Kennedy, and joined in the negotiations.

Five hundred policemen and soldiers with armored cars and machine guns stood by 500 yards from the plane but out of the passengers' sight.

Possibility Of Criminal Charges Seen

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—An FBI report on the May 4 shooting deaths of four students at Kent State University has concluded that the shootings were "Not necessary and not in order" and that six Ohio National Guardsmen could be criminally charged, the Akron Beacon Journal said today.

The newspaper said in a copy-righted story that FBI agents have concluded that guardsmen were not surrounded by demonstrators, had not run out of tear gas and could have controlled the situation without shooting.

More than 100 FBI agents investigated the May 4 shootings, which came as guardsmen moved to break up a crowd of demonstrators.

The Beacon Journal said the FBI's 7,500-page report was summarized in a 10-page report which said:

—About 200 demonstrators who were heckling guardsmen could have been turned back if arrests had been made or more tear gas fired.

—That no guardsmen were hurt by flying rocks or projectiles, and none was in danger of losing his life and there was no hail of rocks before the shootings.

—That one guardsman fired at a student making an obscene gesture and another fired at a student making an obscene gesture and another fired at a student making an obscene gesture.

Police Arrest 16 At House In Wild Party

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Akron police converged on the Lome Star fraternity house at the University of Akron early today, arresting everyone in the house except the housemother on charges of disorderly conduct in a "wild party."

Police said 16 youths, most members of the fraternity, were arrested after one cruiser was pelted with rocks and beer bottles and some participants in the disorder were found nude outside the house and on its roof.

"We went up and cleaned the place out," said Capt. Al Monzo, who led an 11-man force in making the arrests. Monzo said residents had complained in the past about drinking and noise at the house and street cleaners had had to be sent there to clean up broken beer bottles thrown from the house.

Senate Turns To Military Money Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate turned today to the $19.2 billion military procurement bill as part of the battle by defense spending critics to slash President Nixon's $70 billion Pentagon budget.

Although the procurement and research authorization bill contains the smaller amount, an informal group of 40 senators may choose to make it the vehicle for an amendment clamping a strict ceiling on all Pentagon spending in fiscal 1971.

That approach, which in effect, would order the Pentagon to make its own spending cuts as it sees fit, was reportedly the virtually unanimous choice of senators' aides who attended a private strategy session earlier this week.

The senators themselves have yet to approve or veto the spending-limit tactic and no fixed dollar figure for such a ceiling has been advanced.

The procurement bill—essentially the Pentagon's annual shopping list for new weapons systems and the research which makes them possible—faces a series of challenges on full funding for specific items: the Safeguard antiballistic missile system, the $200 million contingency fund proposed for the C5 cargo plane, funds for the trouble-plagued F-14 fighter-bomber and several others.

It also will be the forum for debate and decision on the so-called "end the war amendment" sponsored by Sens. Hatfield and George McGovern, D-S.C.

Reds Push U.S. Troops From Base; 33 GIs Killed

SAIGON (AP) — Heavy North Vietnamese fire that killed 61 Americans and wounded 345 in the area in the past three weeks forced the United States today to abandon a patrol base in the northwestern sector of South Vietnam.

The U.S. troops hastily pulled out of Fire Base Ripcord near the Laotian border, spiking some of their own artillery, less than 24 hours after a patrol operating a mile away suffered the heaviest casualties in a single action in 2½ months.

The U.S. Command, setting its casualty figures, said 12 Americans were killed and 51 wounded in a mortar and ground attack Wednesday on a patrol operating a mile from the base. Enemy losses were unknown. The command earlier had listed six wounded.

A command spokesman said a CH-47 Chinook helicopter was shot down during the evacuation but there were no casualties.

The base was evacuated under enemy fire, and at least three more Americans were killed and 20 wounded in the withdrawal.

"We went up and cleaned the place out," said Capt. Al Monzo, who led an 11-man force in making the arrests. Monzo said residents had complained in the past about drinking and noise at the house and street cleaners had had to be sent there to clean up broken beer bottles thrown from the house.

Police said 16 youths, most members of the fraternity, were arrested after one cruiser was pelted with rocks and beer bottles and some participants in the disorder were found nude outside the house and on its roof.

Berger Given 'Dry Run' Inspection

Acting administrator John Barnes informed members of the Berger Hospital Board of Governors Wednesday evening that the hospital had passed a "dry run" inspection of the staff and facilities for accreditation.

An inspection staff from several Central Ohio hospitals visited Berger yesterday. The three-man team gave favorable judgment on the hospital's organization and offered highly complimentary remarks in several areas including the obstetrics department and the newly revised rules and regulations for the medical staff. No major deficiencies were discovered during the inspection in either the physical plant or staff.

One of the major impediments for accreditation appears to be the lack of autopsy reports completed on patients. According to the rules of the Ohio Hospital Federation, 25 per cent of death cases handled by a hospital should have autopsies performed on them.

At Berger there is not even one completed each year due to lack of facilities. After discussion the board approved the recommendation that it pay the extra expenses of a post mortem examination when a family consents.

BARNES also noted that the hospital had been approved for Medicare benefits following an inspection earlier. All discrepancies noted at a previous inspection had been conformed to.

The Berger staff were commended by the board for their efforts in upgrading the hospital. The board's appreciation extended to individual and group actions which have resulted in the favorable inspections.

Mayor Richard Gerhardt, board chairman, referred to study by the finance committee, some questions concerning liability responsibility. Under present insurance the hospital is fully protected. Members were asked to look into responsibility of individual members of the staff.

The mayor also announced a new contract had been signed with the American Red Cross for blood bank services and asked that it be accepted.

Three bids were considered for the new accounting machine to replace the current system but action was withheld until the new administrator could be consulted.

Statistical reports for the month of June indicated a continued drop in hospital business. The daily average number of patients decreased from 40 to 36 and surgical operations were down to 87 from 103 the previous year. There were over 100 more emergency room visits over the 1969 figures. Births also increased by seven over the 46 recorded a year earlier.

Berger Given 'Dry Run' Inspection

Acting administrator John Barnes informed members of the Berger Hospital Board of Governors Wednesday evening that the hospital had passed a "dry run" inspection of the staff and facilities for accreditation.

An inspection staff from several Central Ohio hospitals visited Berger yesterday. The three-man team gave favorable judgment on the hospital's organization and offered highly complimentary remarks in several areas including the obstetrics department and the newly revised rules and regulations for the medical staff. No major deficiencies were discovered during the inspection in either the physical plant or staff.

One of the major impediments for accreditation appears to be the lack of autopsy reports completed on patients. According to the rules of the Ohio Hospital Federation, 25 per cent of death cases handled by a hospital should have autopsies performed on them.

At Berger there is not even one completed each year due to lack of facilities. After discussion the board approved the recommendation that it pay the extra expenses of a post mortem examination when a family consents.

BARNES also noted that the hospital had been approved for Medicare benefits following an inspection earlier. All discrepancies noted at a previous inspection had been corrected.

The Berger staff were commended by the board for their efforts in upgrading the hospital. The board's appreciation extended to individual and group actions which have resulted in the favorable inspections.

Mayor Richard Gerhardt, board chairman, referred to study by the finance committee, some questions concerning liability responsibility. Under present insurance the hospital is fully protected. Members were asked to look into responsibility of individual members of the staff.

The mayor also announced a new contract had been signed with the American Red Cross for blood bank services and asked that it be accepted.

Three bids were considered for the new accounting machine to replace the current system but action was withheld until the new administrator could be consulted.

Statistical reports for the month of June indicated a continued drop in hospital business. The daily average number of patients decreased from 40 to 36 and surgical operations were down to 87 from 103 the previous year. There were over 100 more emergency room visits over the 1969 figures. Births also increased by seven over the 46 recorded a year earlier.

Suitcase-Sized Atom Bomb Threat To American Cities?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A frightening subplot has been added to the drama of nuclear warfare—the prospect of a suitcase atomic bomb.

Such a weapon is plausible, says a congressional study group and the prospect is important in discussing the "nuclear blackmail" argument used by the Nixon administration to justify the Safeguard antiballistic missile system.

Suitcase bombs have been discussed briefly in public by members of the Senate and House Armed Services committees. But the study group, which supports arms reductions, now says suitcase warfare is made possible by development of compact, lightweight, low-yield weapons.

"For example, a package the size of a portable color television set could conceal a weapon of Hiroshima power," the group says. "It could be carried by one person. Introduction of a megaton weapon into a U.S. city involves a somewhat larger package size, no larger than a hi-fi console and weight of half a ton."

The weapon, the panel suggests, could be taken from a submarine off the Oregon shore and placed on a river raft, transported via automobile to a Chicago hotel room or dumped into a trash barrel in front of the Capitol in Washington.

The study group said there would be drawbacks to such an operation. Enemy agents would need a high degree of security, communication and timing to carry out their plan.

But, the report says, "If a nation like Red China is reckoned such a risk that it would resort to nuclear blackmail by means of a ballistic-missile strike at a few U.S. cities, then presumably it would not be out of line to take seriously a covert attack with planted nuclear weapons."

The suitcase-bomb study is a compilation of research papers distributed to congressmen by the military spending committee of a group known as Members of Congress for Peace Through Law. The committee is led by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., and includes Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., a critic of Pentagon spending.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, seeking to justify the ABM system for defense of cities, has told Congress: "If the Chinese threat came into being as early as 1973, there would be a gap of several years"—if Safeguard is not started immediately—"during which the Chinese could threaten us."

CAB Rejects Bid By Airline To Drop Stop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Allegeny Airlines' request to immediately discontinue service at Portsmouth, Ohio, was denied by the Civil Aeronautics Board Tuesday.

The CAB ordered that Allegeny's application to delete Portsmouth from its certificate go through the customary procedure.

The board noted that if there were no replacement service, Portsmouth would be without airline schedules for the first time since 1957.

Portsmouth opposes the suspension, contending the low volume of traffic generated there has been the result of poor scheduling and lack of advertising and promotion by Allegeny.

Judge Marion Gooding reserved a decision.

'And Did You Hear . . .'

There's good news today for the ladies.

An anthropologist says gossiping will go a long way to ward off stomach ulcers, high blood pressure and neuroses. The way she puts it, a dose of lady-like gossip helps promote emotional stability by releasing frustrations and channeling discontent.

A psychiatrist gets into the act to denounce non-gossipers as tending to "be rigid, repressed and distrustful." And why wouldn't they be, with everybody gossiping about them?

A Vanishing Talent

To walk today — just simply walk for walking's sake — takes courage. Either one is an object of pity or of scorn.

Yet who is to say that everyone wouldn't be better off as a result of walking more? Walking is good exercises. It invites rumination and is thus good for the brain. It affords a chance to commune with nature, and therefore is good also for the soul.

How many people today walk purely for pleasure? For that matter, how many places are there that one can walk without being beset by obstacles? Nothing more clearly illustrates the walker's status in today's society than the fact that many new subdivisions have no sidewalks.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — A note to all those brokers in hiding: It may be safe to come out now and face the public. Sure they're angry about losing all that money on your recommendations. But they're not blaming you for everything.

Test the water. Call up one of those clients who lost his shirt and put it to him: "Isn't now the time to invest?" All he can do is growl some advice of his own and slam the phone. But that shouldn't hurt. Courage.

There's a good chance he might do nothing of the sort, that he may have no more danger in his breast than he has value in his account. Ask him how he hopes to participate in the new upswing if he doesn't get involved. How are you going to return to six figures if you don't make the contacts?

Thad Bowman, sales and marketing director of Shearson, Hammill & Co., is one Wall Streeter who believes the heat is off the securities salesman and they are lying low for no good reason. He explains this way: "In many instances the antagonism that the client originally felt for his broker diminished as the full dimension of the bear market rout became increasingly evident.

"At some point in the present market decline—my own guess is that this point was reached after about 12 months—the feeling grew that the entire affair was an economic phenomenon beyond the control of any person or group."

Bowman is an unusually articulate analyzer of the groundhog neuroses that gripped many brokers, made them burrow out of sight and made them afraid of their own shadow whenever they popped their heads up.

"The registered rep," he said, "has let himself be so conscience-struck by this turn of events that he simply freezes up at the thought of facing the client."

Faced with this appalling situation, executives at Shearson, Hammill concluded that not only was the salesman not helping himself and the company, but he wasn't helping his customers either.

Some 40 executives of the company therefore took off for the branch offices to lend their assistance to brokers, to rebuild customers' accounts and to offer their particular expertise to resolve special problems.

Many customers were shifted into municipal bonds so as to take advantage of high interest rates. Almost all were advised to clear away the dogs and get into fundamentally sound issues. More sophisticated customers were advised about straddles, puts and calls.

Were customers flip or sarcastic? "Not at all," said Chapman. "In an up market we might have received that type of answer. But the customer today is too serious."

Even so, they found, he is forgiving.

SHIRLEY MacLAINE has figured out seven "F" steps designed to make a man say yes: 1. Find him. 2. Fascinate him. 3. Flatter him. 4. Feed him. 5. Fuss over him. 6. Fondle him. 7. Frame him. If all of this fails to do the trick, adds Miss MacLaine, "forget him."

Kathrin Perutz's "Beyond the Looking Glass," a study of the burgeoning beauty culture industry in America, and including illuminating interviews with such as Jean Shrimpton, Vidal Sassoon and Norman Mailer, tells of fashion shows now staged in prisons, brainy women who bleach their hair platinum so that men will mistake them for "dumb broads," and, believe it or not, one woman who sprayed and teased her hair so often (without actually washing it once) that a nest of spiders lodged in it, causing her to die eventually from their bites!

A plastic surgeon defends his patients by pointing out, "If you drive a car with dents in it, the car drives just as well, but you feel unhappy about the dents, so you get the dents repaired. Why not do the same thing with your face?" Well, why not?

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

We have been trying to break our four-year-old child of the habit of stuttering. The more we try, the worse it gets. Are there any new methods for breaking this habit?

Mr. and Mrs. C. K., Maryland Dear Mr. R.: The ilium is a certain kind of pressure which is in itself contrary to good judgment in helping a stuttering child. Pressure, shame, embarrassment and punishment are outmoded and without good judgment. The added pressures put on him serve only to reinforce the problem, and will probably make it last longer.

It is almost impossible for parents without professional direction to find out why a child stutters. The science of speech is a remarkable one and has made gigantic strides in the greater understanding of the mechanism of stuttering.

In every hearing and speech department at universities in the United States, trained psychologists work in cooperation with speech therapists for the accurate diagnosis and treatment of the condition. Only by such coordinated efforts will you be able to give to your child the greatest advantage for the total eradication of his physical problem. The results are excellent when all these forces work together for the child's benefit.

Our 12-year-old daughter was sent home from school because she has scabies. She happens to be a very clean child and bathes often, and is very careful about her personal habits. How is this condition acquired?

Mrs. C. G. N., California Dear Mrs. N.: Scabies is a highly communicable skin disease which is caused by a mite known as sarcoptes scabiei. It is astonishing how often scabies occurs in even privileged families where good health, hygiene and cleanliness is at a maximum.

The mite burrows its way into the skin and causes intense itching which may be an allergic reaction rather than an inflammatory one. The disease can be communicated from person to person by intimate contact and even from infested family pets.

Fortunately, there are now excellent drugs which, when applied all over the body, can destroy the mite. Extreme care and thorough cleaning of clothes and linen eradicates the disease. The fact that it oc-

What is meant by regional ileitis? Is it a serious condition and what can it lead to?

Mr. C. R., Rhode Island Dear Mr. R.: The ilium is the end part of the small intestine as it joins up to the large intestine. Ileitis is, therefore, an inflammation or infection of this portion of the bowel.

When detected early and treated intensively it can almost always be cured with a bland diet, antibiotic drugs, cortisone and moderation of activity, alcohol and tobacco.

Only neglected ileitis leads to complications. The fact that you know you have it and are being treated means that these can be avoided.

Give Bruce Top Authority

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says Ambassador David K. E. Bruce will have great latitude when he becomes chief United States negotiator at the Paris peace talks.

Nixon indicated Tuesday that Bruce will be empowered to discuss propositions offered by the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong and to recommend to Washington any new approach which could end the war in Vietnam.

No decision on whether Bruce will submit any new U.S. peace offer has been announced. But Nixon said the envoy will be able to discuss proposals offered previously by Washington.

Bruce will begin his new duties about Aug. 1, replacing Henry Cabot Lodge who resigned last year.

Bruce attended a strategy session at the White House with other diplomats and military intelligence officials Tuesday. The meeting lasted almost two hours and the White House did not disclose what went on.

Labor Fights Communists

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The trade union movement of the West hasn't always followed policies that are the best for society. But, to give the unions and their social democratic and laborite political party allies their due, they have been stronger bulwarks against Communism than many of the businessmen. The tendency of the hard hats in America to react against dilettante juvenile collectivists, for example, is quite in keeping with union psychology. The hard hats have a stake in democracy, in capital expansion, and in a wage scale that is as good if not better than the average of middle class remuneration.

It is important to know, then, that the Confederation Vietnamese du Travail, or the Vietnamese Confederation of Labor, is building itself into the social fabric of its country as the process of "Vietnamization" proceeds. From time to time the confederation's president, Tran Quoc Buu, sends this column reports of the latest CVT news. Tran Quoc Buu is an ardent anti-Communist; he learned, as a short-term member of the Communist-controlled Viet Minh in 1945, that there was no use making a united front with Ho Chi Minh. He also learned something more, Western trade unionists have always begun by organizing the industrial workers and western Marxists have always stressed the urban proletariat. But Tran Quoc Buu had noticed, quite early, that Ho Chi Minh's strategy was a rural strategy. It was to penetrate the peasantry, to swim like fishes in the sea of a radicalized countryside.

To counter the Ho strategy, which is based on the teaching of Chairman Mao Tse-tung, Tran Quoc Buu has been extending his unionization into the South Vietnamese countryside. The object is to create a hostile "sea" in which the Viet Cong "fishes" will find it impossible to exist. The Tenant Farmers Federation, with 185,000 members, and the Fishermen's Federation (112,000 members) have become the biggest unions in the CVT, which has 500,000 members in all.

The Census Bureau has just revealed that on May 1 the estimated population of the U.S. was 205,022,000 — as they say right to space ship takeoffs — still counting!

One thing you must admit about that figure of 205,022,000 is that it's certainly two-riffic!

In 1960, our population was only 179,323,175. No wonder we've been thinking it's been getting pretty crowded around here!

Recently in Janesville, Wis., two girls broke identical bones in their arms after both fell from the same side of the same horse in the same mishap. That's carrying this togetherness business too far!

It's been nearly a year since Britain's half-penny went out of circulation. That coin was so small it just had to reach the vanishing point!

It's estimated electrical energy used in an average home does work equivalent to 34 servants. And it doesn't insist on having Thursdays and Sundays off!

The hyena only "laughs" when it's searching for food — nature item. We've always thought the eerie sound of that critter's chuckling was strictly from hunger!

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, July 23, the 204th day of 1970. There are 161 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1914, Austria presented a series of harsh demands to Serbia after the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand. Tension was building up that led to World War I.

On this date: In 1829, William A. Burt of Mount Vernon, Mich., received a patent for his "typographer."

The claim is made that it was the world's first typewriter.

In 1886, a New York saloon keeper, Steve Brodie, claimed he had jumped off the Brooklyn Bridge into the East River.

In 1941, in World War II, the Vichy government of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain accepted

Japanese occupation of French Indochina.

In 1945, after the war, Marshal Petain was put on trial in Paris for treason.

In 1951, Petain died on the Biscay Bay island of Yeu, where he had been imprisoned.

In 1963, Cuba took over the U.S. Embassy in Havana.

Ten years ago: Cuba and Communist China signed a five-year agreement under which China would buy $500,000 tons of Cuban sugar each year.

Five years ago: A fishing trawler off the North Carolina coast was wrecked and eight men killed when the boat caught a torpedo in its net.

One year ago: Spain's Prince Juan Carlos took an oath as Francisco Franco's eventual successor.

Coca-Cola Faces Boycott Threat Over Migrants

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer watchdog group has threatened to lead a boycott against famous-name companies such as Coca-Cola unless the firms act immediately to improve the working and living conditions of migrant farm laborers.

Philip W. Moore, counsel to Ralph Nader's Project on Corporate Responsibility, accused the soft drink firm of exploiting Mexican-Americans in testimony Tuesday before the Senate migratory labor subcommittee.

Whether the boycott will be put into effect, he added, will depend on the firm's testimony before the same panel later this week. Moore said he thought "Coca-Cola wants to do something to avoid this problem."

Moore pointed to what he said was substandard housing Coca-Cola's Minute Maid subsidiary maintained for its workers in Florida citrus fields as examples of "this problem."

Doctors Attack Plan To Boost Iron In Bread

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three doctors say that tripling the amount of iron in bread could harm more people than it helps.

The Food and Drug Administration recently proposed such an increase to combat iron deficiency. The baking industry, American Medical Association and American Dietetic Association support the proposal.

But two Boston medical professors and an upstate New York general practitioner have challenged the proposal in letters to the FDA that raise the issue of tolerance to iron.

The doctors, the only ones on record against the proposal, say there is no firm medical evidence to confirm that iron deficiency is a major health problem.

Newton Still Runs Black Panthers

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — From behind the 14-foot fences and steel bars of a state prison, Huey P. Newton guides the militant Black Panther party toward what he envisions as a revolution within his lifetime.

"I decide the final policy on everything in the party," said Newton, Panther co-founder and minister of defense. "I communicate with the party through visits by my family."

The smiling, soft-spoken Newton, 28, has spent the past 2½ years in prison for killing an Oakland policeman. He was sentenced to 2 to 15 years for the Oct. 28, 1967, shooting of officer John Frey.

On May 21 the California District Court of Appeal ordered a new trial on ground that the Superior Court omitted some required instructions to the jury and made other prejudicial errors.

"I'm not very optimistic," Newton said in an interview. "I have very little faith in the state machine. I don't expect justice. I'm just being realistic."

"But I am optimistic about winning the final battle because the people always win."

As the Panthers' chief theoretician, Newton said revolution has constantly occupied his mind at the California Men's Colony, a sprawling medium security prison at the foot of coastal hills near here.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover recently called the Black Panthers the nation's most dangerous organization and accused it of fomenting terrorism in cities and on campuses.

Newton commented: "The most dangerous groups to the people of the world are the Pentagon, including the CIA, the U.S. military, the local police, the avaricious businessman and the lying politicians."

"All are guilty of crimes against the people and the verdict is death."

A party poster picturing Newton on an African wicker throne bearing a shotgun and a spear has been sold nationally. But he said, "I'm against violence. I'm not a violent man. All revolutionaries are against violence."

"There's a distinction between the violence of the aggressor and the self-defense of the attacked."

"We must defend ourselves against poor housing, police brutality and all things that strip a man of his dignity."

As for the poster, he said, laughing, "I don't think the party's image has changed since then, but I hope mine has. I don't like that particular poster, because it makes me look like a monarch. We have a democratic party."

Newton said his primary goals include the freedom of Black Panther Chairman Bobby Seale, charged with murder of a Panther in New Haven, Conn., and the safe return to the United States of Eldridge Cleaver, Panther minister of information who has been a fugitive since he was declared a California parole violator.

STAR GRANGE

Members of Mt. Pleasant Grange were guests of Star Grange Tuesday evening and presented their traveling program. The grange opened in regular form with worthy master. Harold Furniss presiding over the business session.

The group voted favorably to send a delegate and alternate to the Ohio State Grange Convention to be held in Akron, Oct. 26-28. The secretary, Helen Hammel, read a letter from Deputy Paul Dunkle concerning the County Fair. Star Grange members will work at the Food Service Center at the Grange building on Aug. 5 and the men will work at the gates the same day.

A card of appreciation was read from the Liston family and it was announced that Pomona Grange will be held Aug. 14 at the 4-H and Grange building. This will feature the county baking and sewing contest.

The program, under the direction of Mt. Pleasant lecturer, Mrs. Lewis Dean, opened with a reading, "Independence Day," followed by a Flag Quiz which proved very interesting and educational. The group sang "You're A Grand Old Flag" and "Let's Get Acquainted" contest was held.

Mr. Gordon Rihl and Mr.

Lewis Dean presented a Riddle-de-de and Mr. Dorsey Bumgarner sang a solo, "Onward Christian Soldiers" with Mrs. Marvene Rihl at the piano.

A style show was held with Mrs. Mary Green representing the Powder Puff Dress, Mrs. Evelyn Peart in a Lace Dress, Mrs. Anna Moss in a Sack Dress, Marvene Rihl in the grass skirt, a can can skirt by Mrs. Lewis Dean and Mrs. Amelia Wardell an Evening Dress.

800,000 Tickets Sold In Lottery

NEW YORK (AP) — About 800,000 $3 tickets have been sold in the state's special million-dollar lottery. The state Tax Department said Tuesday it was pleased with the pace of sales since the tickets were offered June 10.

The tickets will be on sale for three months, with the drawing to be held late in September. Most proceeds go to public education.

Scientists Want Research Shift

LONDON (AP) — Eighty young scientists from Europe, America and Asia are demanding an end to "irrelevant" research and more emphasis on solving such problems as famine, pollution and the population explosion.

The group, in London for an international science seminar, said Tuesday that 90 per cent of the world's scientists are "wasting their time" on experiments that are unimportant and sometimes even harmful to humanity.

The scientists, most of them under 30, are members of the International Students Movement for the United Nations and another group called LASITOC — the Look At, Search In, Try Out Committee, an international scientific group active in Britain and Sweden.

Coca-Cola Faces Boycott Threat Over Migrants

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer watchdog group has threatened to lead a boycott against famous-name companies such as Coca-Cola unless the firms act immediately to improve the working and living conditions of migrant farm laborers.

Philip W. Moore, counsel to Ralph Nader's Project on Corporate Responsibility, accused the soft drink firm of exploiting Mexican-Americans in testimony Tuesday before the Senate migratory labor subcommittee.

Whether the boycott will be put into effect, he added, will depend on the firm's testimony before the same panel later this week. Moore said he thought "Coca-Cola wants to do something to avoid this problem."

Moore pointed to what he said was substandard housing Coca-Cola's Minute Maid subsidiary maintained for its workers in Florida citrus fields as examples of "this problem."

Doctors Attack Plan To Boost Iron In Bread

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three doctors say that tripling the amount of iron in bread could harm more people than it helps.

The Food and Drug Administration recently proposed such an increase to combat iron deficiency. The baking industry, American Medical Association and American Dietetic Association support the proposal.

But two Boston medical professors and an upstate New York general practitioner have challenged the proposal in letters to the FDA that raise the issue of tolerance to iron.

The doctors, the only ones on record against the proposal, say there is no firm medical evidence to confirm that iron deficiency is a major health problem.

Newton Still Runs Black Panthers

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — From behind the 14-foot fences and steel bars of a state prison, Huey P. Newton guides the militant Black Panther party toward what he envisions as a revolution within his lifetime.

"I decide the final policy on everything in the party," said Newton, Panther co-founder and minister of defense. "I communicate with the party through visits by my family."

The smiling, soft-spoken Newton, 28, has spent the past 2½ years in prison for killing an Oakland policeman. He was sentenced to 2 to 15 years for the Oct. 28, 1967, shooting of officer John Frey.

On May 21 the California District Court of Appeal ordered a new trial on ground that the Superior Court omitted some required instructions to the jury and made other prejudicial errors.

"I'm not very optimistic," Newton said in an interview. "I have very little faith in the state machine. I don't expect justice. I'm just being realistic."

"But I am optimistic about winning the final battle because the people always win."

As the Panthers' chief theoretician, Newton said revolution has constantly occupied his mind at the California Men's Colony, a sprawling medium security prison at the foot of coastal hills near here.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover recently called the Black Panthers the nation's most dangerous organization and accused it of fomenting terrorism in cities and on campuses.

Newton commented: "The perior Court omitted some required instructions to the jury and made other prejudicial errors."

"I'm not very optimistic," Newton said in an interview. "I have very little faith in the state machine. I don't expect justice. I'm just being realistic."

The Garden Corner

A visit to the gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Hatfield, and son Handy of Trimmer Road, will be a long remembered occasion. The large carefully landscaped gardens have flowers blooming from early spring until late fall.

Hermerocallis (day lilies) are their favorites. The gardens contain about 300 varieties and thousands of plants. Some of the colors are orchid, yellow, orange and almost white. Handy has hybridized several including Pumpkin Prelude, Laura Ruth, Canyon Rim, Campus Concert and Fairy Bonnet, a miniature he developed himself. They also have a collection of Hosta or Plantain Lilies.

There are three varieties of magnolias, Star, Sweet Bay and Saucer. Other trees the garden contains are Hoopsi Blue Spruce, Northern Red Oak, Sweet Gum, White Angel Crab,

HYBRIDIZING — The tags on the flower stems indicate that the plants are being hybridized. The Hatfield family has done this with many of the plants in their gardens.

Miss Glenda Lamb of Chillicothe was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Pat Dyer of Mt. Sterling and Miss Hottajo Mosley of Chillicothe. They were attired in yellow dotted Swiss full length gowns with empire waistlines and lace trim at the necklines. Bows matching their gowns held brief veils. Each carried a yellow orchid with matching satin streamers.

Serving as best man was Mr. James Mowery while Mr. Richard Royer, brother of the bride, and Mr. Dan Wharton of Amanda, seated the guests.

Traditional music was sung by Mrs. Floyd Leep of Chillicothe, assisted by Mrs. John Throckmorton of Chillicothe, at the organ.

The Garden Corner

A visit to the gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Hatfield, and son Handy of Trimmer Road, will be a long remembered occasion. The large carefully landscaped gardens have flowers blooming from early spring until late fall.

Hermerocallis (day lilies) are their favorites. The gardens contain about 300 varieties and thousands of plants. Some of the colors are orchid, yellow, orange and almost white. Handy has hybridized several including Pumpkin Prelude, Laura Ruth, Canyon Rim, Campus Concert and Fairy Bonnet, a miniature he developed himself. They also have a collection of Hosta or Plantian Lilies.

There are three varieties of magnolias, Star, Sweet Bay and Saucer. Other trees the garden contains are Hoopsi Blue Spruce, Northern Red Oak, Sweet Gum, White Angel Crab,

HYBRIDIZING — The tags on the flower stems indicate that the plants are being hybridized. The Hatfield family has done this with many of the plants in their gardens.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected for her wedding day a gown of white satin rose brocade. The fitted bodice featured a scalloped neckline and long sleeves ending in bridal points over her hands. The bouffant skirt flowed gracefully into a cathedral train. A head piece of ruffled satin held her bouffant shoulder length net veil and she carried a bouquet of white roses, lily of the valley and baby's breath centered with a white orchid.

Miss Glenda Lamb of Chillicothe was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Pat Dyer of Mt. Sterling and Miss Hottajo Mosley of Chillicothe. They were attired in yellow dotted Swiss full length gowns with empire waistlines and lace trim at the necklines. Bows matching their gowns held brief veils. Each carried a yellow orchid with matching satin streamers.

Traditional music was sung by Mrs. Floyd Leep of Chillicothe, assisted by Mrs. John Throckmorton of Chillicothe, at the organ.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

No Further Action Required!

DEAR ABBY: Our regular minister left town and another one came to replace him. The replacement was 65 years old, and quite attractive.

My mother, a divorcee, was having personal problems, so I suggested she talk to the new minister. Well, his counseling went way beyond the call of duty and they had an affair which got all over town. His wife found out about it, and filed for divorce and left him. She's a lot younger than he is and I don't think she'll have much trouble finding someone else, but I am sick with guilt to think that I sent my mother to this hypocrite in the first place.

As soon as the whole town knew what happened, the minister "resigned" for "health reasons." Mother remarried again (for the third time) shortly after, but I know she is still seeing this minister. Should I switch churches? Or should I continue to tell everyone there is nothing between them as I have been doing?

EMBARRASSED DAUGHTER
DEAR ABBY: Why switch churches? The "Lochnivar of the Pulpit" is no longer there. Don't discuss your mother's affair with anyone, and don't feel guilty for having sent her to him. You meant well, but you are not your mother's keeper, although from your letter, I think she needs one. P. S. Time will solve your problem. An unemployed minister is not about to hang around your town much longer.

DEAR ABBY: I am a male, mid-thirties, and I have an excessive amount of body hair. I've had my share of "hairy ape" jokes. Lately in warm weather I have been shaving my chest and legs for comfort's sake.

What would a psychiatrist say about a man who shaves his chest and legs?

NEAT
DEAR NEAT: Nothing. But he might say something about a man who shaves his chest and legs and asks what a psychiatrist would say about such a man.

DEAR ABBY: The son of a very dear friend of ours is being married soon. On the invitation was a request that instead of a wedding gift, they would like donations sent to the settlement house where the bride works!

We would prefer to send a nice wedding gift, but since they made a "request" for donations, we hate to go against their wishes. What would you do if you were us?

UP A TREE
DEAR UP: I would send a "donation." It seems to be a very thoughtful and unselfish request.

DEAR ABBY: In reading Juliet's letter re probing

questions, I thought of myself and my self-consciousness over a particularly ugly scar on my throat due to a tracheotomy.

For a long time I wore a pearl choker to cover the scar, but removed it one evening at my husband's insistence that I was being overly sensitive. That very evening, at a party, a total stranger came up to me and said, "Wow, that's some scar! Thyroid?"

I replied, "No. I had a very serious SOCIAL DISEASE." The shock on his face was replaced with embarrassment when I added, "It's called foot-in-mouth disease. When are you going to have YOURS taken care of?"

Sincerely,
ANOTHER NEW YORKER

Potential Impact Of 18-Year-Old Vote Eyed

By JOHN M. PEARCE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 11 million young people enfranchised by the controversial 18-year-old vote law have the greatest potential impact in the South and West, but the tendency of young voters to stay home on election day could dilute their influence significantly.

Not even partisan political analysts say the new voters will line up overwhelmingly on one side or another when the law takes effect Jan. 1. David Cooper, director of political research for the Democratic National Committee, says his analyses come up "with a huge, fundamental question mark."

"The cumulative effect, in my guess, will be a low percentage in favor of the Democrats," Cooper said in an interview. His view was echoed by Richard M. Scammon, the former Census Bureau director and compiler of the authoritative "American Votes" series, who thinks the 18-to-21 set leans more toward the Democrats than the rest of the population, "but not enough to make a difference."

The Republican National Committee's director of special projects, Richard Curry, didn't venture a guess about his party's potential gain—or loss—from the new law.

"Turn out, I think, is probably going to be the critical factor," he said in an interview. "There aren't any good bench marks for anyone to go on."

Curry and Scammon predicted the law may have considerable impact on local elections in university towns. Curry said in his view students will have to be allowed to vote where they go to school because the Census Bureau considers them residents.

An Associated Press analysis of the potential impact of the new law provided it is not overturned by the Supreme Court shows it will swell the voting-age population by at least 6.6 per cent in every state, and as much as 10.1 per cent in New Mexico and South Carolina.

Two states, Georgia and Kentucky, already allow the vote at 18. Alaska allows it at 19 and Hawaii at 20. Alaska has the nation's highest percentage of 18 to 21-year-olds with 13.2. In Hawaii the percentage is 10.6 per cent. Georgia and Kentucky are further down the list.

Of the 11 states with the largest percentages of still-ineligible 18-to-21-year-olds, after Alaska and Hawaii, six are in the South and five in the West or Midwest.

Three of those states voted for third-party candidate George C. Wallace in 1968, while the other eight went for President Nixon. Cooper said lowering the voting age could result in increasing support for Wallace or a candidate of his persuasion.

"Wallace's strongest support came from youth," he said. Scammon, on the other hand, cited a Gallup Poll which showed that if 40 per cent of the 18-to-21-year-olds had voted for President in 1968, Nixon's plurality over Hubert H. Humphrey would have been cut slightly but the outcome would not have been changed in a single state.

A simple examination of how many voters will be eligible when the law takes effect Jan. 1 could be misleading, however. Census Bureau figures show only 51 per cent of eligible voters 21 to 24 years old went to the polls in 1968, lowest of any age group.

Voters between the ages of 45 and 65—those most likely to be the younger voters' parents—turned out 75 per cent.

And Scammon said the turnout for those under 21, as measured in the four states that already allow them to vote, was about 33 per cent. Even that likely is high, he said, because people tend to remember they did the "socially acceptable" thing when interviewers question them later.

Cooper, the Democratic analyst, predicted the younger voters will become more active as they come to understand the political system better.

"The kids are beginning to understand the tremendous potential they have," he said. If 90 per cent of the voters between 21 and 35 years old turn out in 1972, while their elders vote about like they have in the past, he said, they would comprise 40 per cent of the electorate.

Curry, his Republican counterpart, said the political and ideological chasm between college students and working "blue-collar" youth might split the new voters even more than age differences separate the views of youth and their parents.

In addition, he said the vote of independent 20-year-olds might be offset by the votes of 18-year-olds still living at home and more likely to be influenced by their parents.

Dear Abby:

No Further Action Required!

DEAR ABBY: Our regular minister left town and another one came to replace him. The replacement was 65 years old, and quite attractive.

My mother, a divorcee, was having personal problems, so I suggested she talk to the new minister. Well, his counseling went way beyond the call of duty and they had an affair which got all over town. His wife found out about it, and filed for divorce and left him. She's a lot younger than he is and I don't think she'll have much trouble finding someone else, but I am sick with guilt to think that I sent my mother to this hypocrite in the first place.

As soon as the whole town knew what happened, the minister "resigned" for "health reasons." Mother remarried again (for the third time) shortly after, but I know she is still seeing this minister. Should I switch churches? Or should I continue to tell everyone there is nothing between them as I have been doing?

EMBARRASSED DAUGHTER
DEAR EMBARRASSED: Why switch churches? The "Lochner of the Pulpit" is no longer there. Don't discuss your mother's affair with anyone, and don't feel guilty for having sent her to him. You meant well, but you are not your mother's keeper, although from your letter, I think she needs one. P. S. Time will solve your problem. An unemployed minister is not about to hang around your town much longer.

DEAR ABBY: I am a male, mid-thirties, and I have an excessive amount of body hair. I've had my share of "hairy ape" jokes. Lately in warm weather I have been shaving my chest and legs for comfort's sake.

What would a psychiatrist say about a man who shaves his chest and legs?

NEAT
DEAR NEAT: Nothing. But he might say something about a man who shaves his chest and legs and asks what a psychiatrist would say about such a man.

DEAR ABBY: The son of a very dear friend of ours is being married soon. On the invitation was a request that instead of a wedding gift, they would like donations sent to the settlement house where the bride works!

We would prefer to send a nice wedding gift, but since they made a "request" for donations, we hate to go against their wishes. What would you do if you were us?

UP A TREE
DEAR UP: I would send a "donation." It seems to be a very thoughtful and unselfish request.

DEAR ABBY: In reading Juliet's letter re probing

questions, I thought of myself and my self-consciousness over a particularly ugly scar on my throat due to a tracheotomy.

For a long time I wore a pearl choker to cover the scar, but removed it one evening at my husband's insistence that I was being overly sensitive. That very evening, at a party, a total stranger came up to me and said, "Wow, that's some scar! Thyroid?"

I replied, "No, I had a very serious SOCIAL DISEASE." The shock on his face was replaced with embarrassment when I added, "It's called foot-in-mouth disease. When are you going to have YOURS taken care of?"

Sincerely,
ANOTHER NEW YORKER

Forever Lasts

For Patty Duke

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When actress Patty Duke was married for the second time June 24 she said, "We have no particular plans but to stay together forever." Her new husband, Michael Tell, chimed in, "For eternity."

Miss Duke, 23, announced through a spokesman Tuesday that she's divorcing Tell, 25, a Las Vegas promoter of rock music concerts.

The brunette actress won an Academy Award in 1962 for her portrayal of the young Helen Keller in the film "The Miracle Worker" and an Emmy last month for a television performance in "My Sweet Charlie."

Miss Duke was divorced March 3 from her first husband, television director Harry Falk, after a four-year marriage. It was Tell's first marriage.

Potential Impact Of 18-Year-Old Vote Eyed

By JOHN M. PEARCE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 11 million young people enfranchised by the controversial 18-year-old vote law have the greatest potential impact in the South and West, but the tendency of young voters to stay home on election day could dilute their influence significantly.

Not even partisan political analysts say the new voters will line up overwhelmingly on one side or another when the law takes effect Jan. 1. David Cooper, director of political research for the Democratic National Committee, says his analyses come up "with a huge, fundamental question mark."

"The cumulative effect, in my guess, will be a low percentage in favor of the Democrats," Cooper said in an interview. His view was echoed by Richard M. Scammon, the former Census Bureau director and compiler of the authoritative "American Votes" series, who thinks the 18-to-21 set leans more toward the Democrats than the rest of the population, "but not enough to make a difference."

The Republican National Committee's director of special projects, Richard Curry, didn't venture a guess about his party's potential gain—or loss—from the new law.

"Turn out, I think, is probably going to be the critical factor," he said in an interview. "There aren't any good bench marks for anyone to go on."

Curry and Scammon predicted the law may have considerable impact on local elections in university towns. Curry said in his view students will have to be allowed to vote where they go to school because the Census Bureau considers them residents. An Associated Press analysis of the potential impact of the new law provided it is not overturned by the Supreme Court shows it will swell the voting-age population by at least 6.6 per cent in every state, and as much as 10.1 per cent in New Mexico and South Carolina.

Two states, Georgia and Kentucky, already allow the vote at 18. Alaska allows it at 19 and Hawaii at 20. Alaska has the nation's highest percentage of 18 to 21-year-olds with 13.2. In Hawaii the percentage is 10.6 per cent. Georgia and Kentucky are further down the list.

Of the 11 states with the largest percentages of still-ineligible 18-to-21-year-olds, after Alaska and Hawaii, six are in the South and five in the West or Midwest.

Three of those states voted for third-party candidate George C. Wallace in 1968, while the other eight went for President Nixon. Cooper said lowering the voting age could result in increasing support for Wallace or a candidate of his persuasion.

"Wallace's strongest support came from youth," he said. Scammon, on the other hand, cited a Gallup Poll which showed that if 40 per cent of the 18-to-21-year-olds had voted for President in 1968, Nixon's plurality over Hubert H. Humphrey would have been cut slightly but the outcome would not have been changed in a single state.

A simple examination of how many voters will be eligible when the law takes effect Jan. 1 could be misleading, however. Census Bureau figures show only 51 per cent of eligible voters 21 to 24 years old went to the polls in 1968, lowest of any age group.

Voters between the ages of 45 and 65—those most likely to be the younger voters' parents—turned out 75 per cent.

And Scammon said the turnout for those under 21, as measured in the four states that already allow them to vote, was about 33 per cent. Even that likely is high, he said, because people tend to remember they did the "socially acceptable" thing when interviewers question them later.

Cooper, the Democratic analyst, predicted the younger voters will become more active as they come to understand the political system better.

"The kids are beginning to understand the tremendous potential they have," he said. If 90 per cent of the voters between 21 and 35 years old turn out in 1972, while their elders vote about like they have in the past, he said, they would comprise 40 per cent of the electorate. Curry, his Republican counterpart, said the political and ideological chasm between college students and working "blue-collar" youth might split the new voters even more than age differences separate the views of youth and their parents.

In addition, he said the vote of independent 20-year-olds might be offset by the votes of 18-year-olds still living at home and more likely to be influenced by their parents.

Airline, Plane Manufacturer Named In Suit

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A Cleveland Heights woman whose husband was killed in the Lake Erie crash of a TAG Airlines plane on Jan. 28 filed a $1,075,000 suit Tuesday against the airline and plane maker.

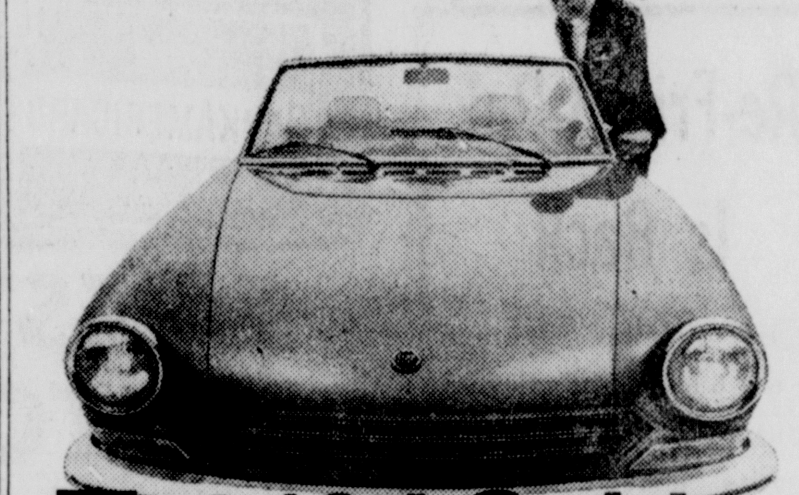

Mrs. John C. Sawyer charged in her U.S. District Court suit that there was negligence in the part of TAG and of DeHavilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd., in the death of her husband.

The suit asks $1 million for the death of her husband, a research manager of TRW Inc., and $75,000 for his pain and suffering and for funeral expenses. The couple's six children, aged from 10 to 25 years, were named in the suit.

The plane that crashed was a DH104 Dove bound for Detroit. Nine persons died in the crash. The National Transportation Safety Board said last month that a crack in a wing fitting was considered a possible cause of the crash.

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television-Radio Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Is it possible to buck the trend toward realism and relevance on television and be successful with a gentle, homespun comedy?

Ken Berry thinks so, and the record of "Mayberry R.F.D." backs him up. The show, in which he stars, finished fourth in last season's national Nielsen ratings.

Sitting in his modest dressing room, a few feet from the set of Emmett's Fixit Shop, Berry observed, "I never liked the ratings until I got into a high-rated show. Now I like them fine." "Mayberry" is beginning its eleventh year on CBS. The first eight years it was "The Andy Griffith Show."

"Mayberry is about people who don't have much to do and their problems are not terribly important," said Berry. "Nobody goes for big laughs. We've taken jokes out if they don't fit the character."

"I've heard it doesn't relate to the problems of today. If you want to see the problems of today, turn on the news. I think there's room for shows that are pure entertainment."

Ken admits that he is worried that CBS is moving away from its emphasis on shows appealing to people in small towns and rural areas. He also is quick to add that he doesn't think "Mayberry" should be lumped into the same category with "Beverly Hillsbillies" and "Green Acres."

"Those shows are farces and you have to accept that to enjoy it," he said. "But I am worried. I can't understand the thinking. 'There are people who think Mayberry couldn't exist, but it does. CBS executives say there's no such place. They get on a plane in New York and they fly here and never see what's in between.'"

Perhaps one reason for the show's popularity is that for most viewers the star is the town itself. It is the hometown everyone wishes they had, and certainly nearly everyone knows someone like Goober or Emmett or Howard.

Despite his tenure on "Mayberry" and "F Troop" before that, Berry can go about town unrecognized. "Larry Storch said I could rob a bank and walk away unnoticed," he said. "I've got the most nondescript face in the world. If I go anywhere in this town people are impressed because of Jackie."

His wife, Jackie Joseph, conducts a popular talk show on a Los Angeles television station. He said, "I was having my car fixed and a little girl said to me, 'you're Jackie Joseph's husband.'"

"I always try to rationalize that it's better to have the privacy," he said.

Cynthia Lowry is on vacation.

Agnew Attacks Red Teachers

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew says, "I believe that an avowed Communist... shouldn't teach anywhere in a tax supported school or a private school or anywhere... in this country."

Agnew said in an interview Tuesday over KTLA, an independent television station, that it is not unwarranted to "put this restriction on someone who is consciously attempting to destroy the fiber of this country through violent means."

Businessmen Said Skeptical Of Federal Commitments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Chamber of Commerce has concluded, much to the surprise of a presidential advisory panel, that businessmen are increasingly skeptical of the Nixon administration's commitment to its own minority enterprise program.

Minority groups, mainly blacks, have been openly doubtful of the White House's intentions and the Commerce Department has at times been faced with near-open revolt in its Office of Minority Business Enterprise, but a finding of skepticism among businessmen — the key to the administration's stated goal of enlisting the private sector — is new.

The message was delivered in private last week to a subcommittee of the Advisory Council for Minority Enterprise by Owen Kugel, the Chamber's coordinator for urban affairs.

The council, made up of private citizens named by President Nixon, is headed by Sam Wyly, a Dallas computer millionaire.

"There is an increasing skepticism on the part of businessmen about the extent to which the Nixon administration is committed to the minority enterprise effort," Kugel told the subcommittee. "Businessmen involved in local programs often hesitate to expand their efforts in the face of this uncertainty."

Kugel, speaking for the nation's largest trade organization, said: "I would urge this council to further evaluate this problem and to recommend affirmative action to the President. The council may consider, for example, urging the President himself to take steps to reassure the business community and its voluntary organizations that the expansion of business opportunities for minority persons is truly a national priority."

Kugel's disclosure, included in a prepared statement on the role of voluntary action, took the council by surprise.

The council now reportedly plans to include some sort of recommendation about how to deal with the problem in the "national blueprint" it intends to send to Nixon in November. Nixon's minority enterprise program has been crippled by problems and internal dissension almost since it was launched.

The Office of Minority Business Enterprise has had almost continuous staff turnover and the council's blueprint is virtually certain to recommend some change in its status.

The Commerce Department and the Small Business Administration have disagreed on what is whose responsibility, and the council in its earlier days survived a fight with Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans over whether or not it should aggressively pursue long-range planning. The council thought it should and its members contend Stans wanted only a body to ratify his department's actions.

OFBF Opposes Farm Program Bill In House

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Farm Bureau voiced "strong opposition" to the farm program bill reported out of the House Agriculture Committee Wednesday.

President Robert Summer of Tiffin said Farm Bureau trustees feel the bill "really is the Agriculture Act of 1965 in disguise" and simply offers more government domination in the market place.

"This is what we've had for a long time and it hasn't really solved any problems," Summer said.

"We are recommending a program that moves agriculture out of the political arena as far as price-making and income setting is concerned and closer to the market system of setting prices and allocating resources to the production of specific commodities."

Solons Told Central State Wants Money

WILBERFORCE, Ohio (AP)—Legislators studying campus unrest were told Wednesday they could expect trouble at Central State University next term if the state doesn't act to supply more financial support.

"You're going to have trouble unless you deal with the problems here," said Sidney O. Davis, president of the Greene County NAACP.

"Since this is the only black state university, you're going to have to keep this school and pump some money into it," he declared.

Testimony Wednesday wound up a two-day hearing on the CSU campus by a legislative subcommittee headed by Rep. Robert Levitt of Canton. The lawmakers also met privately with university officials and others.

Another witness at the public hearing, William J. Davis, Columbus attorney and counsel for the CSU student government, also cited the need for more state funding.

"I don't feel that laws are going to solve this situation unless they're laws on appropriations," he said. "Get more money to the schools. Representative legislation will not solve the problem."

Cinton Churchman, director of the student union at Central State, said students are concerned with the state of the country and the need for greater human concern by all people.

Students revolt, he said, because they have a feeling of "utter futility and frustration." He said they blame the older generation for the social ills, Vietnam war, pollution and "hypocrisy of this country."

Lower Farm Subsidies Fought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has vowed to fight congressional efforts to reduce a proposed $55,000 ceiling on annual federal subsidies to farmers for not working their land.

The House Agriculture Committee Wednesday approved an omnibus bill limiting payments to individual and corporate farmers who participate in federal programs to reduce acreages planted in cotton, wheat and feed grains. The $55,000 ceiling would apply to each of the three categories.

Reps. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., and Paul Findley, R-Ill., charged the ceiling was too high. Findley said he would attempt to lower it to $20,000 per crop—the maximum amount approved earlier this month by the Senate.

The statement brought a prompt response from Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin, who told reporters the administration supports the $55,000 ceiling and will fight efforts to reduce it.

There is no limit presently on the amount a farmer can receive from the federal government for not planting crops. Five individual payments of over $1 million each were made by the federal government in 1969 under the three categories of crops involved.

The subsidy program costs about $3.5 billion a year and benefits about 2.5 million farmers. The payments average $1,400. One-third of all payments are $500 or less.

Presumably, under terms of the bill, a large corporate farm with holdings in various parts of the country could receive a maximum of $165,000 for withholding land from wheat, feed grain and cotton production.

Conte said he would introduce an amendment to prevent large corporate farms from breaking down their holdings into smaller units to avoid the $55,000 ceiling.

The House twice in recent years voted a $20,000 ceiling, only to have it upset in conferences with the Senate.

Hardin called the measure "a good bill" that will "enhance the economic position of farmers" in the years ahead.

The bill, expected to be taken up by the full House next week, provides voluntary control, a plan for setting aside excess crop land, price support loans and payments for cotton, wheat and feed grains, three of the nation's most abundant and troublesome crops.

It also includes sections dealing with dairy, wool, and Food For Peace and cropland retirement.

Government spending would continue at about the present level, slightly more than $3 billion a year in payments for the three crop categories.

The plan, however, would allow more flexibility in adjusting price supports at less than prevailing world prices, thus making U.S. farm products more competitive as exports, officials say.

Marijuana Plants On OU Golf Course

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Four giant marijuana plants ranging in height from seven to nine feet were discovered on the Ohio University golf course Wednesday.

Authorities didn't know whether the marijuana was planted or grew wild. Sheriff Harold Shields said the "pot" was of high quality, "the finest I've seen in 22 years of police work."

Have No Bidders On Nixon Yachts

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The presidential yachts Patricia and Julie went on the auction block Tuesday but there were no bidders.

"It is apparent that due to the restrictions placed on the use of the boats, the interest has waned," said Dorothy Ring, sales contracting officer at the Defense Surplus Sales Office here.

The White House specified that the boats not be used for commercial purposes. Minimum prices were set at $100,000 for the 92-foot Patricia and $65,000 for the 64-foot Julie. President Nixon is selling the boats in an economy move.

Gets Death Penalty For Belmont Murder

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Ohio (AP)—Arnold Heintland, 29, of Wheeling, W. Va., was sentenced Wednesday to die in Ohio's electric chair Nov. 2 for the murder of Charles Kinney, 68, of rural Belmont County last November.

A Belmont County Common Pleas Court jury convicted Heintland May 16 on a first-degree murder charge. A co-defendant, Virgil Conners, 25, of Shadyside, is awaiting trial.

Red, White, Blue Car Brings Jail Term For Ohioan

WATERLOO, N. Y. (AP) — Waterloo Town Justice Peter Dine apparently didn't see anything patriotic about Daniel R. Marsh's car.

He sentenced the 22-year-old Wilmington, Ohio, man to 15 days in the county jail for casting contempt on the American flag.

State Police arrested Marsh as he drove through the area in a car painted red, white and blue with a peace symbol on the rear window.

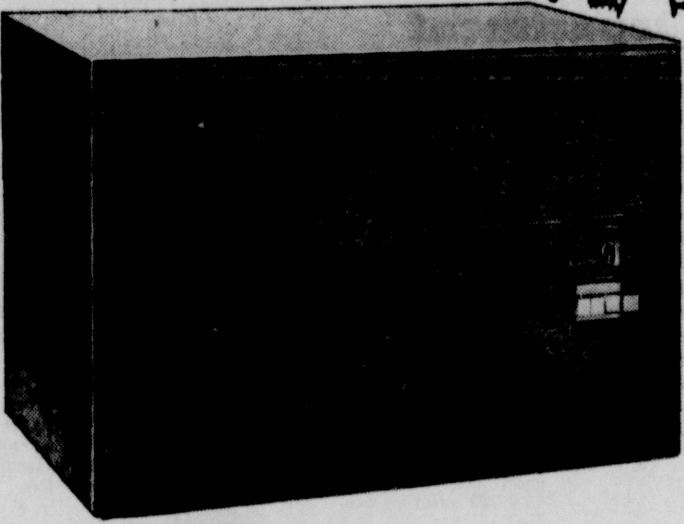

Dine also ordered him to repaint the car.

Town council met last Monday night, July 6, at its regular monthly meeting. Mayor Ronald Bush, all council members Earl Baker, president, Don Greene, Leroy Lane, Paul Bivens, Luther Anderson, Charles Wallace, and clerk Georgeann (Mrs. Bill) Puffinbarger were present. A review of past months activities and bills were discussed and passed on.

The three members of the Board of Public Affairs, Normagene (Mrs. John) Drummond, Malcolm (Bud) Grady and Jim Howell presented two proposals. First was a request for an ordinance regarding curb stop on gas line and property owners responsibility. Council passed resolution. Second proposal was a request for a pay increase for the village gas and water clerk who also serves as collector. After careful deliberation this request was voted out. The thinking prevailing was that the work load had not increased enough to warrant a pay raise.

Patrolman Kirk Whitesed (he used to be called village marshal but some kind of a new law prohibits this now) questioned a directive issued some time ago (June 6, 1966, to be exact) for the closing and locking of the Post Office at 8:00 p.m. I know first hand that this order was necessary because of so much vandalism in the lobby of the P.O. and the government gave orders for supervision and surveillance or close the office at 5:00 p.m. Serving on council at that time we all felt this would serve a distinct hardship on our townspeople and so the marshal agreed to patrol the area during the "critical hours" and to lock up at 8:00 p.m. Personally I am happy that the present council refused to let a personal relationship generate into a "grudge war" and that with the general welfare of the citizens uppermost in mind the service of keeping the lobby of the P.O. open for folks to have access to their lockboxes will continue.

The fiscal year report and new budget were read by the clerk and passed. Your town fathers and mayor stand ready to hear any suggestions you might have for the betterment and welfare of our community.

We hear so many gripes about how our tax money is being spent that I thought perhaps you readers might be interested in knowing that your money is indeed being well-spent at the Pickaway County Childrens Services and especially so with the two "jewels" Pat Dawley and Marcia Brehmer who are serving this summer as the two students-in-training. These two girls, members of the board, a friend and two other staff members transported by private cars approximately 51 children to the Columbus Zoo and amusement park last Tuesday. The day was the courtesy of the AAA Club at Columbus. The day was enjoyed by all who took part. I am sure. Very rewarding!

While her mother and sisters were gallanting around Cincinnati, Joy Lynn Drummond spent Wednesday and Thursday nights with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Doyen Bode of Adelphi.

Last Thursday morning several from here journeyed to Cincinnati to appear on the Paul Dixon Show. After that some went to the Cincinnati zoo and my carload containing Marabel (Mrs. David) Drummond and her Connie and Sandee, yours truly and my Marc and Amy drove out to Coney Island and all its delights. Mrs. Paul Drummond, Susan, Karen, Jerry and Donnie, Miss Mary Clark, Mrs. Dorothy Clark, Mrs. Robert Peck and her four, Mrs. John Wardell and Jeff, Mrs. Bernard Steinhauer, Mrs. Purl Cochenour, Mrs. Agnes Brayshaw, Mrs. Max Sheets, Mickey and Kenny enjoyed the show. It's a moot point whether we enjoyed Coney Island since Amy and Sandee both became ill and we had our moments with each. A day such as that is one that becomes better with time and memories of the "bad" part fades.

Karen Drummond went to the Westerville home of her Aunt Peggy (Mrs. Max) Sheets for a few days and while she was there cousin Mickey had the misfortune to fall out of a hayloft and break his arm in two places. He was a patient at Grant Hospital for a few days. Great-aunt Mary Clark drove up and returned Karen to her home so she could celebrate her sixth birthday with a family dinner and party at the home of parents Paul and Louise.

Saw scads of cars in the driveway at Marvin and Dolly Thompson's last night and my reporter nose twitched figuring they were having a "shindig" but when I called her it turned out to be her brothers and friends doing some fishing on the banks of ye olde Deercreek. Don't know whether they made a good catch or not.

David Michael McClure of Londonderry returned to his home today after being our guest since last Friday. The lure of the "wilds" beckoned to him and his cousin Marc and the two Graffis boys, Chuck and John and so Sunday evening they pitched their tent on the banks of Deercreek on the Smith Hulse farm and slept out.

They loved the experience but my weary old bones prefer a nice soft bed. This is better known as the generation gap!

Mr. and Mrs. John Cleary of Long Island, N. Y. have reluctantly returned to their home after a delightful visit with their daughter Carol and her sidekick Michael Tarbill and the lovely grandkiddies.

We are to recognize why our response to traditional music in the church is different from our reaction to new forms. We are to gain a new awareness and appreciation for the new forms of church music and liturgy.

At the close of the topic, two young people from our congregation who had been fortunate to spend a week in our U.S. Capitol, told of their trip to Washington D. C. and presented pictures and slides of same. They were Miss Sandra Smith, who went as a 4th representative and Mark Justus, who went with his 8th grade class of Washington Twp. School.

Disposal Of Radioactive Garbage Mounting Problem

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) — A growing pile of nuclear garbage will still be giving off deadly radiation 1,000 years from now. Critics challenge whether the Atomic Energy Commission keeps that hot trash safely isolated from the environment.

Radioactive leftovers are an inescapable byproduct of atomic reactors that produce the radioactive elements for nuclear weapons and generate a growing share of the nation's electricity.

Set State Fair Entertainment

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Fair Manager Jerry Kaltenbach said Wednesday the free entertainment program for the grandstand has been completed, featuring England's recording star, Engelbert Humperdinck on opening day, Aug. 27, and closing Sept. 7 with comedian Bob Hope.

Humperdinck will entertain through Friday, Aug. 28, while Hope will appear Sept. 5 through Sept. 7. In between the Johnny Cash show Sept. 24, the Goldiggers, the 5th Dimension, Paul Dixon, Mary Lou Collins, Billy Maxfield, Hell Drivers, Dave Merrifield, boxing, horse racing, youth symphony Avco Show, Appaloosa and quarter horse races, and other entertainment is scheduled.

The rapid growth of the nuclear power industry is causing a proliferation of privately operated nuclear fuel reprocessing plants, waste storage facilities and shipment of highly radioactive material on the nation's railroads, which average more than 15 derailments a day.

AEC scientists worry as much as anybody about nuclear waste disposal. They were going about their work with little public notice or outside interference until May 1966, when a National Academy of Sciences committee handed in a report that gave the AEC more than it asked for.

The Committee on Geological Aspects of Radioactive Waste Disposal, one of many outside groups that advise the AEC, concluded that "no existing AEC installation which generated either high level or intermediate level wastes appears to have a satisfactory geological location for the safe local disposal of such waste products; neither does any of the present waste disposal practices satisfy the committee's criterion for safe disposal of such wastes."

The AEC commented that the committee had gone beyond its original scope, received "relatively little information concerning AEC operations" and made recommendations that would involve spending billions of dollars.

The committee report sat in files for more than three years until Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, heard about it and demanded a copy.

He got one, along with the AEC comments and the agency's note that a new National Academy of Sciences committee had been formed to look into waste disposal. No member of the old committee was named to the new one.

Despite having "relatively little information," the old committee had presented the AEC with a remarkably detailed and lengthy report.

Among its observations were these: That considerations of long-range safety are in some instances subordinated to regard for economy of operation, and that some disposal practices are conditioned in overconfidence in the capacity of the local environment to contain vast quantities of radionuclides for indefinite periods without dangers to the biosphere. In discussing leaks from its Hanford tanks, the AEC notes that the liquid moved only 15 feet through the dry, hard soil, while the water table is 180 feet below the surface.

But the NAS committee described itself as dubious that radioactivity couldn't eventually be carried down to the water table "in the event of a rare calamitous flood."

About the same time it got the NAS report, the AEC was pushing for studies of the possibilities of earthquakes in the Hanford area. When Hanford was built during World War II, the primary considerations in choosing the site were its isolation and its dry climate. No particular consideration was given to the possibility of a strong earthquake.

Years later, when the first nuclear power plants were built, the AEC became earthquake conscious. Power companies were required to design plants to withstand a strong shaking and to conduct detailed surveys of sites to make sure they wouldn't build a plant right on a fault.

But the AEC's own installations didn't undergo the same review as power plants. It was suggested they ought to. In the mid-1960s a number of surveys were made of the Hanford area. All concluded that the chances of a strong earthquake were extremely slight.

Dr. G. W. Housner of California Institute of Technology did one of those early surveys and said in an interview that he concluded "it was not a region where we would expect strong shaking."

Two years ago Housner was asked to take another look at Hanford to determine whether the Hanford reactors were designed to withstand the maximum shock that might occur in the area. The U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey rates Hanford as susceptible to moderate earthquake damage.

Housner recommended some changes but the AEC decided they weren't necessary.

The AEC says it is extremely unlikely that an earthquake could rupture one of the huge tanks at Hanford and send its radioactive contents spilling into the Columbia River seven miles away. The Federal Water Pollution Control Administration is fighting a continuing battle with the AEC over operations at Hanford and NRTS. Officials of this Interior Department agency hope the Federal Water Pollution Control Act and Presidential Executive Order 11288 will give them the muscle to win a confrontation with the AEC.

"We're starting to go to the mat with the AEC," said one official at the water pollution agency's Portland, Ore., regional office.

The act calls for improving water quality and the executive order directs federal agencies to lead such efforts.

"Chemical and radioactive wastes have degraded the ground water beneath the NRTS," the report said. It recommended that the AEC stop pumping low level radioactive waste into the aquifer and that it end the practice of burying solid waste above it.

The AEC then notified the state of Idaho that it plans to stop burying solid waste over the aquifer, though not for ten years or more. AEC plans would send solid waste to a repository it wants to establish in 1,000-foot-deep salt mines in Lyons, Kan.

Federal water pollution officials say they have yet to get permission to enter the Hanford installation and inspect the tank storage area.

They hope to eliminate Hanford's use of water from the Columbia River to cool reactors.

In 1966, federal water quality officials asked the AEC to halt this practice and install heat dissipation facilities at Hanford. Nothing was done, they said.

Officials said they are more concerned about thermal pollution than with traces of radioactivity also found in the river and in shellfish at its mouth more than 200 miles from Hanford.

Preliminary results of studies now underway have shown that salmon, the most important commercial and sport fish in the river, are extremely sensitive to increases in the water temperature.

In answer to criticism that its vast store of liquid waste is particularly dangerous, the AEC says it expects to have converted all the liquid now in storage at Hanford to solid form by 1975.

But the growth of the nuclear power industry will greatly accelerate the generation of liquid waste. Walter G. Belter of the AEC's division of reactor development, predicted in a recent speech that by the year 2000, there will be 77 million gallons of high level liquid waste in storage, only 3 million gallons less than is now in tanks.

The new fuel reprocessing industry is developing as a satellite of nuclear power plants. After about two years, the radioactive fuel elements in nuclear power plants lose their efficiency and must be replaced.

The so-called spent elements are extremely hot and highly radioactive. They are stored at the plant under water for three to six months to allow the short-lived radioactive elements to decay off and also to dissipate some of the heat. Then they are loaded into huge shipping casks for transport to a fuel reprocessing plant.

The only commercial plant now in operation is at West Valley, N.Y. Another is under construction at Morris, Ill.

The reprocessing plants have far greater potential for releasing radioactivity to the atmosphere than do power plants. Their normal releases of two radioactive elements—Krypton 85 and Tritium—are far greater than from power plants.

In addition, fuel reprocessing plants will become small storage depots for liquid radioactive waste. The liquid is generated when the spent fuel elements are immersed in acid and processed to recover plutonium and uranium. High level liquid waste remains.

The new Morris plant being built by General Electric Co. is designed to process the liquid immediately into solid form, a procedure that could solve the future liquid waste problems.

Most shipping of spent fuel elements to reprocessing facilities and potentially of solid waste to salt mines is via rail. Casks for holding fuel elements weigh 75 to 100 tons and are supposed to be able to hold up after a 30 foot drop onto an unyielding surface and 30 minutes in a 1,475 degree fire.

But the thick AEC regulations governing casks say nothing about the makeup of trains. While federal regulations prohibit putting unlike hazardous materials next to each other—such as radioactive material next to a load of explosives—there is no bar to putting them in the same freight train with a few cars in between.

Most of the 5,000 or more derailments of freight trains each year are minor. But in 1969 alone, 25 communities were evacuated after derailment of trains carrying loads of hazardous materials.

There have been no cases where radioactive material has been involved in a major derailment.

But the railroads are leery enough of the prospects that some, including the Penn Central, refuse to haul spent fuel elements.

lons of boiling hot liquid stored in 200 giant tanks, and more mundane items such as rags, clothing and machine oil that have one big difference: they make a Geiger counter tick.

Much of the criticism of AEC handling of nuclear waste centers on these points:

—Two major facilities, the Hanford Atomic Works near Richland, Wash., and the National Reactor Test Site (NRTS) at Idaho Falls, Idaho, are in areas of moderate earthquake activity.

—While the AEC says it now has methods for converting liquid waste to a more easily and safely handled solid form, progress has been slow.

—NRTS is located directly above the Snake River Aquifer, one of the world's largest underground fresh water sources. Some low level liquid waste containing only minute quantities of radioactivity is pumped into the aquifer.

—There have been 11 leaks from tanks at Hanford—one involved 50,000 gallons—in 26 years. AEC officials say the liquid moved only 15 feet and couldn't possibly reach the water table. Some scientists aren't so certain.

—The rapid growth of the nuclear power industry is causing a proliferation of privately operated nuclear fuel reprocessing plants, waste storage facilities and shipment of highly radioactive material on the nation's railroads, which average more than 15 derailments a day.

AEC scientists worry as much as anybody about nuclear waste disposal. They were going about their work with little public notice or outside interference until May 1966, when a National Academy of Sciences committee handed in a report that gave the AEC more than it asked for.

The Committee on Geological Aspects of Radioactive Waste Disposal, one of many outside groups that advise the AEC, concluded that "no existing AEC installation which generated either high level or intermediate level wastes appears to have a satisfactory geological location for the safe local disposal of such waste products; neither does any of the present waste disposal practices satisfy the committee's criterion for safe disposal of such wastes."

The AEC commented that the committee had gone beyond its original scope, received "relatively little information concerning AEC operations" and made recommendations that would involve spending billions of dollars.

The committee report sat in files for more than three years until Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, heard about it and demanded a copy.

He got one, along with the AEC comments and the agency's note that a new National Academy of Sciences committee had been formed to look into waste disposal. No member of the old committee was named to the new one.

Despite having "relatively little information," the old committee had presented the AEC with a remarkably detailed and lengthy report.

Among its observations were these:

That considerations of long-range safety are in some instances subordinated to regard for economy of operation, and that some disposal practices are conditioned in overconfidence in the capacity of the local environment to contain vast quantities of radionuclides for indefinite periods without danger to the biosphere.

In discussing leaks from its Hanford tanks, the AEC notes that the liquid moved only 15 feet through the dry, hard soil, while the water table is 180 feet below the surface.

But the NAS committee described itself as dubious that radioactivity couldn't eventually be carried down to the water table "in the event of a rare calamitous flood."

About the same time it got the NAS report, the AEC was pushing for studies of the possibilities of earthquakes in the Hanford area. When Hanford was built during World War II, the primary considerations in choosing the site were its isolation and its dry climate. No particular consideration was given to the possibility of a strong earthquake.

Years later, when the first nuclear power plants were built, the AEC became earthquake conscious. Power companies were required to design plants to withstand a strong shaking and to conduct detailed surveys of sites to make sure they wouldn't build a plant right on a fault.

But the AEC's own installations didn't undergo the same review as power plants. It was suggested they ought to. In the mid-1960s a number of surveys were made of the Hanford area. All concluded that the chances of a strong earthquake were extremely slight.

Dr. G. W. Housner of California Institute of Technology did one of those early surveys and said in an interview that he concluded "it was not a region where we would expect strong shaking."

Two years ago Housner was asked to take another look at Hanford to determine whether the Hanford reactors were designed to withstand the maximum shock that might occur in the area. The U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey rates Hanford as susceptible to moderate earthquake damage.

Housner recommended some changes but the AEC decided they weren't necessary.

The AEC says it is extremely unlikely that an earthquake could rupture one of the huge tanks at Hanford and send its radioactive contents spilling into the Columbia River seven miles away.

The Federal Water Pollution Control Administration is fighting a continuing battle with the AEC over operations at Hanford and NRTS. Officials of this Interior Department agency hope the Federal Water Pollution Control Act and Presidential Executive Order 11288 will give them the muscle to win a confrontation with the AEC.

"We're starting to go to the mat with the AEC," said one official at the water pollution agency's Portland, Ore., regional office.

The act calls for improving water quality and the executive order directs federal agencies to lead such efforts.

"Chemical and radioactive wastes have degraded the ground water beneath the NRTS," the report said. It recommended that the AEC stop pumping low level radioactive waste into the aquifer and that it end the practice of burying a solid waste above it.

The AEC then notified the state of Idaho that it plans to stop burying solid waste over the aquifer, though not for ten years or more. AEC plans would send solid waste to a repository it wants to establish in 1,000-foot-deep salt mines in Lyons, Kan.

Federal water pollution officials say they have yet to get permission to enter the Hanford installation and inspect the tank storage area.

They hope to eliminate Hanford's use of water from the Columbia River to cool reactors.

In 1966, federal water quality officials asked the AEC to halt this practice and install heat dissipation facilities at Hanford. Nothing was done, they said.

Officials said they are more concerned about thermal pollution than with traces of radioactivity also found in the river and in shellfish at its mouth more than 200 miles from Hanford.

Preliminary results of studies now underway have shown that salmon, the most important commercial and sport fish in the river, are extremely sensitive to increases in the water temperature.

In answer to criticism that its vast store of liquid waste is particularly dangerous, the AEC says it expects to have converted all the liquid now in storage at Hanford to solid form by 1975.

But the growth of the nuclear power industry will greatly accelerate the generation of liquid waste. Walter G. Belter of the AEC's division of reactor development, predicted in a recent speech that by the year 2000, there will be 77 million gallons of high level liquid waste in storage, only 3 million gallons less than is now in tanks.

The new fuel reprocessing industry is developing as a satellite of nuclear power plants. After about two years, the radioactive fuel elements in nuclear power plants lose their efficiency and must be replaced.

The so-called spent elements are extremely hot and highly radioactive. They are stored at the plant under water for three to six months to allow the short-lived radioactive elements to decay off and also to dissipate some of the heat. Then they are loaded into huge shipping casks for transport to a fuel reprocessing plant.

The only commercial plant now in operation is at West Valley, N.Y. Another is under construction at Morris, Ill.

The reprocessing plants have far greater potential for releasing radioactivity to the atmosphere than do power plants. Their normal releases of two radioactive elements—Krypton 85 and Tritium—are far greater than from power plants.

In addition, fuel reprocessing plants will become small storage depots for liquid radioactive waste. The liquid is generated when the spent fuel elements are immersed in acid and processed to recover plutonium and uranium. High level liquid waste remains.

The new Morris plant being built by General Electric Co. is designed to process the liquid immediately into solid form, a procedure that could solve the future liquid waste problems.

Most shipping of spent fuel elements to reprocessing facilities and potentially of solid waste to salt mines is via rail. Casks for holding fuel elements weigh 75 to 100 tons and are supposed to be able to hold up after a 30 foot drop onto an unyielding surface and 30 minutes in a 1,475 degree fire.

But the thick AEC regulations governing casks say nothing about the makeup of trains. While federal regulations prohibit putting unlike hazardous materials next to each other—such as radioactive material next to a load of explosives—there is no bar to putting them in the same freight train with a few cars in between.

Most of the 5,000 or more derailments of freight trains each year are minor. But in 1969 alone, 25 communities were evacuated after derailment of trains carrying carloads of hazardous materials.

There have been no cases where radioactive material has been involved in a major derailment.

But the railroads are leery enough of the prospects that some, including the Penn Central, refuse to haul spent fuel elements.

Hard Hat Maker Unhappy With Use Of His Product

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — "I believe in the American flag and I sell hard hats, but I don't think the flag or hats should be used for anyone's political cause," complains hard hat maker George Dickstein.

Dickstein's 73-employee Sports Products Corp. in suburban Shaker Heights, which has thrived on making batters' helmets used in hat day promotions at major league ball parks and making other hats with insignia, has found a new market for its lightweight industrial "bump hats."

It started when Macy's Department Store in New York ordered bump hats with peace symbols after the Wall Street construction workers' parade.

Dickstein's firm doesn't make the heavy duty helmets worn by construction workers, but its lightweight version has been adopted by other groups.

The fledgling United Hard Hats of America, a Cleveland group planning a political parade to City Hall this Sunday, ordered 3,000 of the hats. Dickstein was upset when, after selling the hats, George J. Cicero of the Cleveland organization expressed support for George Wallace and said he wasn't sure how well long-haired people or Negroes would fit into the march.

"I opposed the use of the hard hat by the Wall Street construction workers in their march," Dickstein said. "I don't want to be aligned with any movement whose participants believe it is all right to beat up antiwar demonstrators."

Dickstein, who said he was "Against U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia," said "I'm not opposed to construction workers wearing the flag on their hats, although I don't think they own the flag. I don't think anyone has exclusive rights to the flag."

Pluses And Minuses Mark Environmental Battlefront

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

Mid-year of 1970 brought two major events that could shape much of the fight to save the American environment throughout this decade, and beyond.

One of them, President Nixon's sweeping attempt to coordinate the federal environmental effort, holds the promise of making the fight more effective. But the other, the discovery of widespread and dangerous mercury poisoning of many American waters, promises that the struggle will be even more difficult than many had feared.

While any benefits to come from the President's proposed reorganization are some time away, making this a potential gain, the mercury pollution is an immediate reality and a major loss on any scorecard of man's antipollution race.

In pulling together a variety of pollution control efforts now scattered throughout government into one new agency, the Environmental Protection Agency, the President hopes to overcome the present system, which he said "often defies effective and concerted action."

One phase of the reorganization plan should please environmentalists—removing from the Atomic Energy Commission the authority for setting radiation exposure standards. Environmentalists have long charged the AEC with a conflict of interest, promoting the use of atomic energy while being responsible for regulating it.

The President also proposes combining air and sea research under a new National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration within the Commerce Department. It is being called "Noah."

Unless Congress objects, the entire plan goes to effect 60 days from the July 9 announcement. Observers expect controversy over the AEC proposal. The discovery of significant amounts of mercury in waters of at least 17 states takes on even more importance because it appears most people did not suspect the problem even existed. Just how widespread, how serious, and what damage to human health may already have occurred, is unknown. And what of all the other chemicals in the environment?

Mercury, the liquid inside ordinary thermometers, is a heavy metal that is poisonous to humans. It finds its way to water, federal officials say, in waste from industry, from paper, chlorine, sodium and plastics operations.

It can cause progressive brain damage, blindness, kidney damage, death. It can persist in water for 100 years, experts say. Industrial pollution experts previously believed that mercury did not dissolve in water, but sank harmlessly to the bottom of rivers and lakes.

But for all the awareness, there is still a lot of adverse ecological news.

—The government's effort to ban lead from gasoline is in trouble in Washington and the 1970 cars on the road have failed to meet exhaust reduction standards.

—If everybody stopped polluting Lake Erie today it would take at least 12 years for the lake to regenerate naturally.

—The Seminole and Miccosukee Indians have leased exploration rights to 100,000 acres of their land in the heart of the Florida Everglades to major oil companies, posing a new threat to the ecology of the Everglades.

—Further, Florida faces pollution problems of "catastrophic proportions" in the 1970s, according to a state report. Plans for coping with the problem are termed "grossly inadequate and ineffective."

Of the positive steps taken, many, like the President's reorganization plan, require time before they can produce results.

But as an indication of the changing times and attitudes, there is the new policy of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers—a group often considered as "an enemy of the people" by conservationists because of the engineers' preoccupation with construction.

Lt. Gen. F. J. Clarke, chief of the Army engineers, unveiled the policy statement in Washington, committing the corps to "give full consideration to environmental values: with economic, social and technical factors in projects such as dam building."

Also on the plus side of the environmental scorecard, some beginnings are being made on recycling materials rather than junking them.

—Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., for example, is building a pilot plant in Akron, Ohio, for converting used tires into usable materials. If it works, Firestone says it will set up 10 plants around the country.

—The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has awarded a $364,000 grant to the National Association of Secondary Material Industries, Inc., to do a study of possible uses of solid wastes. It will focus on scrap copper, aluminum, lead, zinc, nickel alloys and stainless steel, precious metals, paper stock and textiles.

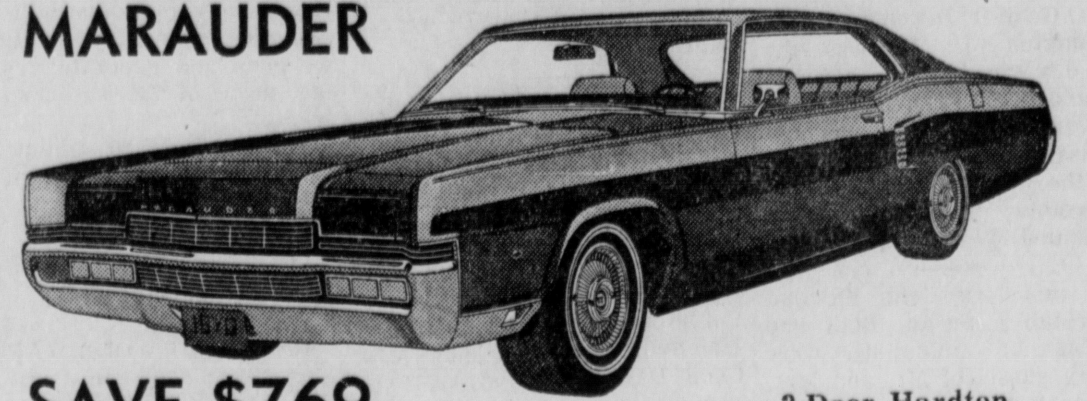

—On noise pollution, Citizens for a Quieter City, a group of business and professional people in New York City, has designed a project aimed at substantially reducing the noise from jack-hammers, automobile horns, sirens and garbage trucks in a 60-block area of Manhattan. The group, with a $300,000 Ford Foundation grant, will study how the noise reduction affects the attitudes and well-being of the people who live in the area.

"I opposed the use of the hard hat by the Wall Street construction workers in their march," Dickstein said. "I don't want to be aligned with any movement whose participants believe it is all right to beat up antiwar demonstrators."

Pluses And Minuses Mark Environmental Battlefront

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

Mid-year of 1970 brought two major events that could shape much of the fight to save the American environment throughout this decade, and beyond.

One of them, President Nixon's sweeping attempt to coordinate the federal environmental effort, holds the promise of making the fight more effective. But the other, the discovery of widespread and dangerous mercury poisoning of many American waters, promises that the struggle will be even more difficult than many had feared.

While any benefits to come from the President's proposed reorganization are some time away, making this a potential gain, the mercury pollution is an immediate reality and a major loss on any scorecard of man's antipollution race.

In pulling together a variety of pollution control efforts now scattered throughout government into one new agency, the Environmental Protection Agency, the President hopes to overcome the present system, which he said "often defies effective and concerted action."

One phase of the reorganization plan should please environmentalists—removing from the Atomic Energy Commission the authority for setting radiation exposure standards. Environmentalists have long charged the AEC with a conflict of interest, promoting the use of atomic energy while being responsible for regulating it.

The President also proposes combining air and sea research under a new National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration within the Commerce Department. It is being called "Noah."

Unless Congress objects, the entire plan goes to effect 60 days from the July 9 announcement. Observers expect controversy over the AEC proposal. The discovery of significant amounts of mercury in waters of at least 17 states takes on even more importance because it appears most people did not suspect the problem even existed. Just how widespread, how serious, and what damage to human health may already have occurred, is unknown. And what of all the other chemicals in the environment?

Mercury, the liquid inside ordinary thermometers, is a heavy metal that is poisonous to humans. It finds its way to water, federal officials say, in waste from industry, from paper, chlorine, sodium and plastics operations.

It can cause progressive brain damage, blindness, kidney damage, death. It can persist in water for 100 years, experts say. Industrial pollution experts previously believed that mercury did not dissolve in water, but sank harmlessly to the bottom of rivers and lakes.

But for all the awareness, there is still a lot of adverse ecological news.

The government's effort to ban lead from gasoline is in trouble in Washington and the 1970 cars on the road have failed to meet exhaust reduction standards.

If everybody stopped polluting Lake Erie today it would take at least 12 years for the lake to regenerate naturally.

The Seminole and Miccosukee Indians have leased exploration rights to 100,000 acres of their land in the heart of the Florida Everglades to major oil companies, posing a new threat to the ecology of the Everglades.

Further, Florida faces pollution problems of "catastrophic proportions" in the 1970s, according to a state report. Plans for coping with the problem are termed "grossly inadequate and ineffective."

Of the positive steps taken, many, like the President's reorganization plan, require time before they can produce results. But as an indication of the changing times and attitudes, there is the new policy of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers—a group often considered as "an enemy of the people" by conservationists because of the engineers' preoccupation with construction.

Lt. Gen. F. J. Clarke, chief of the Army engineers, unveiled the policy statement in Washington, committing the corps to "give full consideration to environmental values: with economic, social and technical factors in projects such as dam building."

Also on the plus side of the environmental scorecard, some beginnings are being made on recycling materials rather than junking them.

Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., for example, is building a pilot plant in Akron, Ohio, for converting used tires into usable materials. If it works, Firestone says it will set up 10 plants around the country.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has awarded a $364,000 grant to the National Association of Secondary Material Industries, Inc., to do a study of possible uses of solid wastes. It will focus on scrap copper, aluminum, lead, zinc, nickel alloys and stainless steel, precious metals, paper stock and textiles.

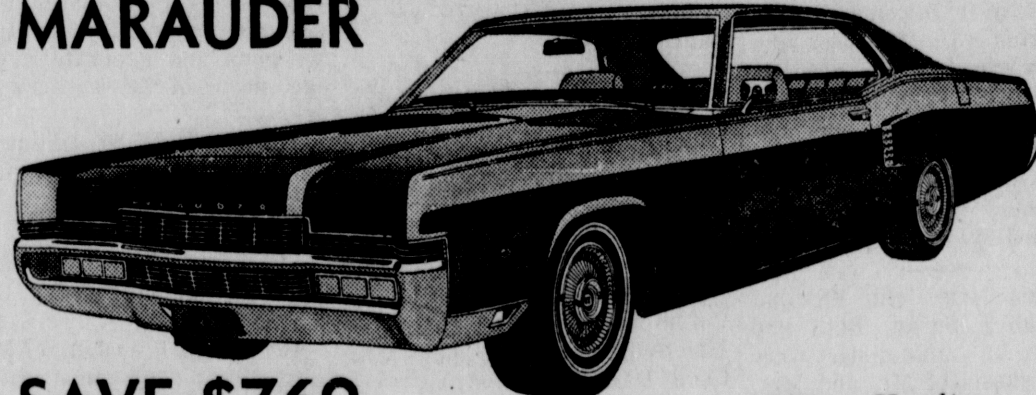

On noise pollution, Citizens for a Quieter City, a group of business and professional people in New York City, has designed a project aimed at substantially reducing the noise from jack-hammers, automobile horns, sirens and garbage trucks in a 60-block area of Manhattan. The group, with a $300,000 Ford Foundation grant, will study how the noise reduction affects the attitudes and well-being of the people who live in the area.

Umpire Stalls Red Machine, 10-2

CHICAGO (AP) — When you're in the driver's seat, like the Cincinnati Reds, you can laugh off an umpire's boner and set a time schedule for a title stretch drive.

The umpire's slip up came yesterday and sewed up a 10-2 decision over the Reds.

"Guys are running all over the place, and Dick Tremblay (plate umpire) is holding the ball," said manager Sparky Anderson, whose Reds hold a commanding lead in the National League east race.

He referred to a play on which relief pitcher Ray Washburn threw wildly over his catcher on a bases-loaded bounder by Randy Hundley and then had Tremblay ask for the retrieved ball from Washburn.

Meanwhile, Hundley was exchanging greetings at second base with Johnny Callison who had retreated from third base, also occupied by a Cub.

With Tremblay studiously examining the ball, Hundley was able to scamper back to first base. The upshot of it all was that the Cubs pushed across four of their five third-inning runs without hitting the ball out of the infield.

"I wasn't mad, though," said Anderson. "Tremblay is a good umpire. He blew it, but we had the inning fouled up before that happened."

Anderson used the losing effort, played before 37,853 — second largest crowd of the season at lightless Wrigley Field — to rest Johnny Bench and partially use big guns Pete Rose and Tony Perez.

"If the Dodgers play strong enough to catch us, they'll deserve it. But after Aug. 15, we hope we can set up the way we want to go from then on."

Bench may be used in today's windup of the two-game set with the Cubs "if the wind is blowing out," said Anderson. "He's got a little muscle spasm in his back, but took batting practice Wednesday."

Yesterday, Anderson pulled Rose and National League home run and RBI leader Perez in the sixth inning. "We're then behind 8-0 and they could stand a rest," said Anderson.

Rose dumped a bunt single in the sixth to break up a no-hitter bid by Chicago's Bill Hands. Hands, who was aided by Jim Hickman's four RBI's including a three-run homer in the first, scattered six hits to boost his record to 12-7.

Billy Williams, playing his continuing record National League 1,075th straight Cub

Block's Takes Hill's, 20-5; Mac's Wins 9th

Block's blasted Hill Implement, 20-5, and Mac's took Hap's, 17-12 in the only Mosquito League action Wednesday night.

Pete Harrison and Bob Chalfin ripped two doubles to lead the Block's nine to their fifth win of the season, Mike Contino also tagged a homer for the winners.

Chalfin was also the winning hurler fanning six would be hitters and allowing eight hits and 11 bases on balls.

Duane Shirey took the loss on the hill allowing the Shoemen 13 hits and 18 bases on balls while whiffing eight.

JOHN Harr was the hero of the Mac's win over Hap's. He tossed a 16 hitter but gave up only 12 runs while batting three for five at the plate with a triple and two two-basers.

Chris Mays and Rick Schwalbaugh tagged two doubles each for the winning effort and Rick Fox and Barry Weaver hit one apiece.

Doug Young and Brad Willoughby were the losing pitchers giving up 12 hits.

Willoughby blasted a triple and a double in four trips to the batter's box while Jim Clark and Todd Brady hit doubles.

Whips Whip Richmond, 1-0, 3-1

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Winnipeg pitchers John O'Donoghue and Bobby Reynolds almost made the Whips forget that their 30 victories in the International League this year matches the number of games they trail league leading Syracuse.

O'Donoghue and Reynolds allowed the Richmond Braves only five hits in 14 innings as the Whips swept a doubleheader from the suddenly impotent Richmonders.

O'Donoghue pitched a three-hitter in the opener, which the Whips won 1-0 on Fred Whitfield's 10th home run, while Reynolds tossed a two-hitter in the nightcap to earn a 3-1 victory.

In other games, Denny Ribant turned in four-hit pitching performance to pick up his 11th win as Columbus downed Rochester 3-1. The only run off Ribant came in the fourth inning on a homer by Roger Freed, his 18th of the season.

Hal Reniff picked up his eighth win without a loss as Syracuse defeated Louisville 8-5 and fattened its league lead to nine games.

The Toledo at Tidewater doubleheader was rained out.

game, chipped in with a two-run homer in the sixth.

Hickman, whose 21st homer matched his entire 1969 output, had been benched by an infection since Sunday.

"I got a little weaker as the game went on, but that happens if you lay off even a few days," said the Cubs' leading hitter.

Perranoski, Twins Defeat Detroit Tigers, 2-1

By TOM SALADINO

Associated Press Sports Writer

Reliever Ron Perranoski made his brief stay a perfect one for the West leading Minnesota Twins while the Baltimore Orioles, kings in the East, have been perfect for over a year against their Kansas City cousins.

Perranoski, the veteran southpaw, picked up his 24th save of the season Wednesday night, nailing the last four Detroit batters in preserving Jim Perry's 15th victory of the season—tops in the American League—as the Twins edged the Tigers 2-1.

Meanwhile the Orioles streaked to their 19th consecutive victory over the Royals and 11th straight at Kansas City, winning 4-3 in 13 innings.

The triumph increased the Twins lead in the West Division to five over California while the Orioles lead the Tigers by five games in the East.

In other AL games, Boston swept a day-night twinbill from the Angels, 7-4, and 8-3, Oakland edged Washington 4-3, Milwaukee topped New York 4-1 and Cleveland belted Chicago 6-2.

"Ron came in and did the job," said Twins' manager Bill Rigney. "Perry, Perranoski and Killebrew, that's an act I'd like to have for three or four more seasons," he added.

Perry, 15-7, pitched five perfect innings and allowed only two hits before Perranoski came to the rescue in the eighth with one Detroit run in and the tying run on second with two out.

Don Wert had both Detroit hits while Harmon Killebrew drove in both Twins runs off loser Mickey Lolich, 9-11, with a third inning single.

The Orioles kept their string alive when pinch-hitter Chico Salmon drove in the winning run with a two-out infield hit in the 13th inning.

Baltimore dropped its first game to the two-year old expansion club on May 9, 1969 and hasn't lost since. It was their 11th straight victory in Kansas City without a loss.

The Royals had pushed across a pair of runs in the eighth to tie it at 3-3 on singles by Pat Kelly, Lou Piniella and Bob Oliver and walks to Ed Kirkpatrick and Cookie Rojas.

Carl Yastrzemski collected three hits in each game, increasing his average to .323 to move into contention for his fourth batting title in the double victory over the Angels.

Yaz, hitting at a .523 clip, increased his hitting streak to 12 consecutive games with 23 hits in 44 attempts. Yastrzemski had three singles in the opener while Boston teammate Reggie Smith drove in three runs with a double and triple.

In the nightcap, the Boston slugger had a pair of singles and a double while John Kennedy had a homer and George Thomas a two-run double. Tom Egan and Roger Repoz had homers for the Angels.

Oakland erupted for three eighth-inning runs, the last coming on Washington reliever Darold Knowles' throwing error to overcome the Senators.

Felipe Alou opened the A's eighth with a homer and after a walk, Knowles came on. Joe Rudi ripped a pinch double to tie it at 3-3 before Knowles got the next two hitters. The left-hander then walked Dick Green intentionally. Then with Dave Duncan at bat, Knowles' pickoff throw to first went wild and the winning run came across.

Paul Casanova had a homer for the Senators.

Consecutive fifth inning homers by Ted Savage and Bob Burda snapped a 1-1 tie and sent the Brewers on their way to their first triumph over the Yankees this season. Bob Bolin tossed a six-hitter for the winners.

Washington Hurler Loses No Hitter

Pickaway failed to get a hit but managed to come up with a run to defeat Washington Township, 1-0, in Tri County Little League Major action Wednesday.

Justus was the unfortunate moundman for Washington. He didn't allow the Pickaway swingers a hit but lost the game when Konkle scored the lone run in the encounter. He walked two and fanned 14 would be hitters.

Rawlins was the winning hurler allowing two hits as he shut out the lads from Washington. He issued two free passes and struckout 12.

S. Allen and Justus had the hits for the Washington nine.

Outlook For Ohio Anglers Said Good To Excellent

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Division of Wildlife fieldmen rate "excellent" the fishing outlook for Lake Erie areas this coming weekend.

The outlook in other areas of the state also is good.

LAKE ERIE — Perch fishing is considered excellent, with best areas the Sandusky Bay, Huron Pier areas, around Kelleys Island and the vicinity of Foghorn. Catfish are still biting at Baybridge, Portage River, Kelleys Island, Huron River, Crystal Rock and White's landing. Bass are being taken at Gibraltar, Gull Reef and Kelleys Island, and catches of walleye continue to be made in the island area, around Hen and Chicken Islands, Vermillion, Ruggles Beach and Niagara Reef. Some white bass are being taken around island and reef areas.

CENTRAL OHIO — Streams in this area are slightly cloudy and clearing, with catches of bluegills, carp, smallmouth and rock bass on artificial lures and nightcrawlers reported in most areas. The most productive area near Indian Lake is the Miami River, upstream from Indian Lake. At Hoyer Reservoir, crappies are being taken at the county line road bridge and off the dam. Bass are being caught by trolling at Buckeye Lake with artificial lures.

NORTHWEST — At Lima Reservoir, good catches of channel catfish are reported; in the Maumee River excellent catches of bullheads and channel catfish are being made on nightcrawlers, and in Clear Fork Reservoir excellent catches are being made of channel catfish, with nightcrawlers — comprise the best fishing in this area.

NORTHEAST — Bass are being taken in the willows and shallows on artificial baits at Berlin Reservoir, also some walleye, at Nimisila Reservoir, catfish angling is listed as "outstanding" at night on the Nimisila Peninsula. Walleyes are hitting well very deep across the Pymatuning Lake from the camping grounds.

SOUTHEAST — Walleye and bass are being caught on spinners at Salt Fork Lake, and crappies on live bait. Bluegills, carp, catfish and crappies are biting on live bait at Seneca Lake, and at Fox Lake the weekend outlook is reported very good for bass, bluegills, catfish and pickerel.

SOUTHWEST — The majority of streams are clear and normal and in some areas, but a few are high and roily. Streams should be in good condition by the weekend.

At Lake St. Marys, channel catfish are biting on live bait and at Lake Loramie some largemouth bass are being caught on live baits. Outlook at Acton Lake is reported good for the weekend with channel catfishing the best bet, at night. Good catches of bluegills also being made at Acton. At Stonelick Lake, some largemouth bass are being caught on nightcrawlers and artificial bait, but best outlook is for bluegills.

Pirates Turn Back Mets, 5-3

By ED SCHUYLER JR.

Associated Press Sports Writer

Bruce Dal Canton came through with a key relief job for the Pittsburgh Pirates—as a starter.

"I'd rather be a starter but I know I'll be back in the bullpen," Dal Canton said Wednesday night after working 7 2/3 innings and getting the victory in the Pirates' 5-3 triumph that boosted to two games their lead in the National League East over the New York Mets, who lost to San Diego 5-4 in 10 innings.

Dal Canton might go back to the bullpen, but his starting and winning performance was sorely needed by the Pirates, who have three starters out with injuries.

Bob Veale, sore arm, is expected back Saturday or Sunday, but it is not known when Bob Moose, sore elbow, will return and Steve Blass is on the disabled list after being hit on his pitching arm by a line drive.

In other NL action Wednesday, Houston hammered St. Louis 13-9, Los Angeles outlasted Montreal 12-10, the Chicago Cubs clubbed Cincinnati 10-2 and Philadelphia topped San Francisco 5-3.

"I was happy to get four or five innings, anything else was a bonus," Manager Danny Murtaugh said following Dal Canton's second major league start. He started against Los Angeles in 1967 and lost.

The 28-year-old right-hander, 5-11, had a five-hitter and a 5-1 lead before running into trouble in the eighth and being saved by bullpen colleague Dave Giusti.

Ivan Murrell's RBI single with two-out in the 10th off Nolan Ryan got San Diego by the Mets, who had taken a 4-3 lead on Bud Harrelson's sacrifice fly in the ninth only to have the Padres tie it 4-4 on Nate Colbert's leadoff homer in the bottom of the ninth. Murrell followed with a single to knock out Tom Seaver for the first time since May 6.

Ed Spiezio socked a two-run homer to give San Diego a 3-3 tie in the seventh.

Bob Bailey drove in four runs with a homer and two-run double, Ron Fairly smacked a two-run homer and John Bateman cracked a two-run single as Montreal built up a 10-4 lead, but Los Angeles came back to win on an eight-run seventh inning. Big blows of the inning for the Dodgers were a grand slam homer by Ron Fairly and a solo shot by Von Joshua.

St. Louis took a 6-3 lead with five runs on two hits in the third, but Houston came back to go ahead to stay in the fourth with seven runs on three hits, four walks and an error as the Cardinals lost their fourth straight game and for the 13th time in 15 games.

CHICAGO (AP) — When you're in the driver's seat, like the Cincinnati Reds, you can laugh off an umpire's boner and set a time schedule for a title stretch drive.

The umpire's slip up came yesterday and sewed up a 10-2 decision over the Reds.

"Guys are running all over the place, and Dick Tremblay (plate umpire) is holding the ball," said manager Sparky Anderson, whose Reds hold a commanding lead in the National League east race.

He referred to a play on which relief pitcher Ray Washburn threw wildly over his catcher on a bases-loaded bounder by Randy Hundley and then had Tremblay ask for the retrieved ball from Washburn.

Meanwhile, Hundley was exchanging greetings at second base with Johnny Callison who had retreated from third base, also occupied by a Cub.

With Tremblay studiously examining the ball, Hundley was able to scamper back to first base. The upshot of it all was that the Cubs pushed across four of their five third-inning runs without hitting the ball out of the infield.

"I wasn't mad, though," said Anderson. "Tremblay is a good umpire. He blew it, but we had the inning fouled up before that happened."

Anderson used the losing effort, played before 37,858 — second largest crowd of the season at lightless Wrigley Field — to rest Johnny Bench and partially use big guns Pete Rose and Tony Perez.

"If the Dodgers play strong enough to catch us, they'll deserve it. But after Aug. 15, we hope we can set up the way we want to go from then on."

Bench may be used in today's windup of the two-game set with the Cubs "if the wind is blowing out," said Anderson. "He's got a little muscle spasm in his back, but took batting practice Wednesday."

Yesterday, Anderson pulled Rose and National League home run and RBI leader Perez in the sixth inning. "We're then behind 8-0 and they could stand a rest," said Anderson.

Rose dumped a bunt single in the sixth to break up a no-hitter bid by Chicago's Bill Hands. Hands, who was aided by Jim Hickman's four RBIs including a three-run homer in the first, scattered six hits to boost his record to 12-7.

Billy Williams, playing his continuing record National League 1,075th straight Cub

Block's Takes Hill's, 20-5; Mac's Wins 9th

Block's blasted Hill to implement, 20-5, and Mac's took Hap's, 17-12 in the only Mosquito League action Wednesday night.

Pete Harrison and Bob Chalfin ripped two doubles to lead the Block's nine to their fifth win of the season. Mike Contino also tagged a homer for the winners.

Chalfin was also the winning hurler fanning six would be hitters and allowing eight hits and 11 bases on balls.

Duane Shirey took the loss on the hill allowing the Shoemen 13 hits and 18 bases on balls while whiffing eight.

JOHN Hap was the hero of the Mac's win over Hap's. He tossed a 16 hitter but gave up only 12 runs while batting three for five at the plate with a triple and two two-basers.

Chris Mays and Rick Schwalbaugh tagged two doubles each for the winning effort and Rick Fox and Barry Weaver hit one apiece.

Doug Young and Brad Willoughby were the losing pitchers giving up 12 hits.

Willoughby blasted a triple and a double in four trips to the batter's box while Jim Clark and Todd Brady hit doubles.

LL Star Faces Major Surgery

James (Peanuts) Barker, 11, 215 W. Union St., is a surgical patient in Children's Hospital, Columbus, Ohio 317.

He will undergo surgery this morning for the amputation of his leg due to a tumor of the hip.

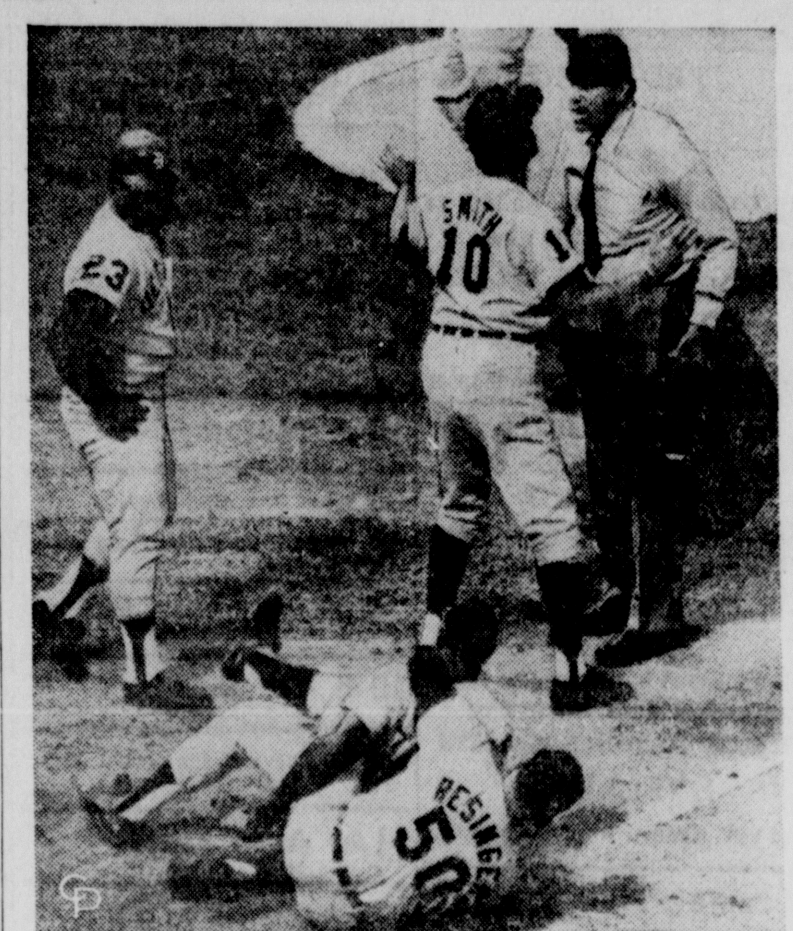

Peanuts is one of the stars of the Coca Cola Jet team in the Circleville Little League Majors.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Barker, 215 W. Union St.

game, chipped in with a two-run homer in the sixth.

Hickman, whose 21st homer matched his entire 1969 output, had been benched by an infection since Sunday. "I got a little weaker as the game went on, but that happens if you lay off even a few days," said the Cubs' leading hitter.

THIS MAD, MAD WORLD — Seems like more than one guy has a mad on here as coach Grover Resinger of the Tigers holds back Ike Brown (on the ground) and manager Mayo Smith argues with umpire Ron Luciano on a disputed call at the plate during game in Kansas City. Brown fumed when called out. Willie Horton watches.

Perranoski, Twins Defeat Detroit Tigers, 2-1

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer
Reliever Ron Perranoski made his brief stay a perfect one for the West leading Minnesota Twins while the Baltimore Orioles, kings in the East, have been perfect for over a year against their Kansas City cousins.

Perranoski, the veteran southpaw, picked up his 24th save of the season Wednesday night, nailing the last four Detroit batters in preserving Jim Perry's 15th victory of the season—tops in the American League—as the Twins edged the Tigers 2-1.

Meanwhile the Orioles streaked to their 19th consecutive victory over the Royals and 11th straight at Kansas City, winning 4-3 in 13 innings.

The triumph increased the Twins lead in the West Division to five over California while the Orioles lead the Tigers by five games in the East.

In other AL games, Boston swept a day-night twinbill from the Angels, 7-4, and 8-3, Oakland edged Washington 4-3, Milwaukee topped New York 4-1 and Cleveland belted Chicago 6-2.

"Come on in and did the job," said Twins' manager Bill Rigney. "Perry, Perranoski and Killebrew, that's an act I'd like to have for three or four more seasons," he added.

Perry, 15-7, pitched five perfect innings and allowed only two hits before Perranoski came to the rescue in the eighth with one Detroit run in and the tying run on second with two out.

Don Wert had both Detroit hits while Harmon Killebrew drove in both Twins runs off loser Mickey Lolich, 9-11, with a third inning single.

The Orioles kept their string alive when pinch-hitter Chico Salmon drove in the winning run with a two-out infield hit in the 13th inning.

Baltimore dropped its first game to the two-year old expansion club on May 9, 1969 and hasn't lost since. It was their 11th straight victory in Kansas City without a loss.

The Royals had pushed across a pair of runs in the eighth to tie it at 3-3 on singles by Pat Kelly, Lou Piniella and Bob Oliver and walks to Ed Kirkpatrick and Cookie Rojas.

Carl Yastrzemski collected three hits in each game, increasing his average to .323 to

Outlook For Ohio Anglers Said Good To Excellent

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Division of Wildlife fieldmen rate "excellent" the fishing outlook for Lake Erie areas this coming weekend.

The outlook in other areas of the state also is good.

The outlook by districts: LAKE ERIE — Perch fishing is considered excellent, with best areas the Sandusky Bay, Huron Pier areas, around Kelleys Island and the vicinity of Foghorn. Catfish are still biting at Baybridge, Portage River, Kelleys Island, Huron River, Crystal Rock and White's landing. Bass are being taken at Gibraltar, Gull Reef and Kelleys Island, and catches of walleye continue to be made in the island area, around Hen and Chicken Islands, Vermillion, Ruggles Beach and Niagara Reef. Some white bass are being taken around island and reef areas.

CENTRAL OHIO — Streams in this area are slightly cloudy and clearing, with catches of bullheads, carp, smallmouth and rock bass on artificial lures and nightcrawlers reported in most areas. The most productive area near Indian Lake is the Miami River, upstream from Indian Lake. At Hoover Reservoir, crappies are being taken at the county line road bridge and off the dam. Bass are being caught by trolling at Buckeye Lake with artificial lures.

NORTHWEST — At Lima Reservoir, good catches of channel catfish are reported; in the Maumee River excellent catches of bullheads and channel catfish are being made on nightcrawlers, and in Clear Fork Reservoir excellent catches are being made of channel catfish, with nightcrawlers — comprise the best fishing in this area.

NORTHEAST — Bass are being taken in the willows and shallows on artificial baits at Berlin Reservoir, also some walleye. At Nimisila Reservoir, catfish angling is listed as "outstanding" at night on the Nimisila Peninsula. Walleyes are hitting well very deep across the Pymatuning Lake from the camping grounds.

SOUTHEAST — Walleye and bass are being caught on spinners at Salt Fork Lake, and crappies on live bait. Bluegills, carp, catfish and crappies are biting on live bait at Sereca Lake, and at Fox Lake the weekend outlook is reported very good for bass, bluegills, catfish and pickerel.

SOUTHWEST — The majority of streams are clear and normal and in some areas, but a few are high and roily. Streams should be in good condition by the weekend.

At Lake St. Marys, channel catfish are biting on live bait and at Lake Lorain some largemouth bass are being caught on live baits. Outlook at Acton Lake is reported good for the weekend with channel catfish the best bet, at night. Good catches of bluegills also being made at Acton. At Stonelick Lake, some largemouth bass are being caught on nightcrawlers and artificial bait, but best outlook is for bluegills.

Pirates Turn Back Mets, 5-3

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
Bruce Dal Canton came through with a key relief job for the Pittsburgh Pirates—as a starter.

"I'd rather be a starter but I know I'll be back in the bullpen," Dal Canton said Wednesday night after working 7-2-3 innings and getting the victory in the Pirates' 5-3 triumph that boosted to two games their lead in the National League East over the New York Mets, who lost to San Diego 5-4 in 10 innings.

Dal Canton might go back to the bullpen, but his starting and winning performance was sorely needed by the Pirates, who have three starters out with injuries.

Bob Veale, sore arm, is expected back Saturday or Sunday, but it is not known when Bob Moose, sore elbow, will return and Steve Blass is on the disabled list after being hit on his pitching arm by a line drive.

In other NL action Wednesday, Houston hammered St. Louis 13-9, Los Angeles outlasted Montreal 12-10, the Chicago Cubs clubbed Cincinnati 10-2 and Philadelphia topped San Francisco 5-3.

"I was happy to get four or five innings, anything else was a bonus," Manager Danny Murtaugh said following Dal Canton's second major league start. He started against Los Angeles in 1967 and lost.

The 28-year-old right-hander, 5-1, had a five-hitter and a 5-1 lead before running into trouble in the eighth and being saved by bullpen colleague Dave Giusti.

Ivan Murrell's RBI single with two-out in the 10th off Nolan Ryan got San Diego by the Mets, who had taken a 4-3 lead on Bud Harrelson's sacrifice fly in the ninth only to have the Padres tie it 4-4 on Nate Colbert's leadoff homer in the bottom of the ninth. Murrell followed with a single to knock out Tom Seaver for the first time since May 6.

Ed Spiezio socked a two-run homer to give San Diego a 3-3 tie in the seventh.

Bob Bailey drove in four runs with a homer and two-run double, Ron Fairly smacked a two-run homer and John Bateman cracked a two-run single as Montreal built up a 10-4 lead, but Los Angeles came back to win on an eight-run seventh inning. Big blows of the inning for the Dodgers were a grand slam homer by Ron Fairly and a solo shot by Von Joshua.

St. Louis took a 6-3 lead with five runs on two hits in the third, but Houston came back to go ahead to stay in the fourth with seven runs on three hits, four walks and an error as the Cardinals lost their fourth straight game and for the 13th time in 15 games.

Jim Wynn homered for Houston and Richie Allen and Jose Cardenal connected for St. Louis.

Whips Whip Richmond, 1-0, 3-1

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Winnipeg pitchers John O'Donoghue and Bobby Reynolds almost made the Whips forget that their 30 victories in the International League this year matches the number of games they trail league leading Syracuse.

O'Donoghue and Reynolds allowed the Richmond Braves only five hits in 14 innings as the Whips swept a doubleheader from the suddenly impotent Richmonders.

O'Donoghue pitched a three-hitter in the opener, while the Whips won 1-0 on Fred Whitfield's 10th home run, while Reynolds tossed a two-hitter in the nightcap to earn a 3-1 victory.

In other games, Denny Ribant turned in four-hit pitching performance to pick up his 11th win as Columbus downed Rochester 3-1. The only run off Ribant came in the fourth inning on a homer by Roger Freed, his 18th of the season.

Hal Reniff picked up his eighth win without a loss as Syracuse defeated Louisville 8-5 and fattened its league lead to nine games.

The Toledo at Tidewater doubleheader was rained out.

Oilers Upset First Bankers

Circleville Oil upset the second seeded First National Bank squad, 16-12, in the Little League Minor local Wednesday night in an extra inning fray.

Scores were deadlocked at 11-11 after the regulation six innings of play. With back to back doubles by Mark Linton and Toren Bensonhaver, the Oilers managed five runs in their half of the seventh and held the First Bankers to one for the win.

Mike Morgan connected with two two-sackers for the Circleville Oil squad while Linton, Bensonhaver, David Rose and Liam Rooney hit doubles. Tom McGuire hit a two-baser for the First Bank.

Scott Willoughby and Bensonhaver teamed up on the hill for the win. Willoughby went the regular six allowing eight hits and seven walks while whiffing eight. Bensonhaver gave up one run and one hit striking out one in the seventh stanza.

Dave Cline and Denny Williams took the loss for the First Bankers allowing 16 runs on six hits and 18 walks.

Hal Reniff picked up his eighth win without a loss as Syracuse defeated Louisville 8-5 and fattened its league lead to nine games.

Volunteers Once Manned Fire Department

By MICHELE HULSE
Herald Staff Writer

The period from the early 1860s to 1881 was an exciting era in the history of Circleville's municipal hall. It was during this time that the local fire combat force, all volunteer, was housed in the structure.

When the bell in the tower atop the city building pealed out its warning, all the volunteers would come running along with half the townspeople. The men would grab the equipment, at this period all pulled by hand and steam-operated, and speed off to the laze.

There were four separate forces totaling some 130 men, charging their way through the town in an effort to be the first to place their hose in the cistern nearest the fire.

If two units would arrive at a cistern simultaneously there was the added attraction for spectators of a fist fight among the firemen for the coveted position. The losers would move their equipment to a more distant "water hole," requiring the use of much more hose.

Despite all the wrangling among themselves, the firemen did quite an excellent job as records reveal the town quite free of destructive fires during that time.

Forty men each manned the Circleville Company No. 1 and Buckeye Company No. 2. They were in charge of the steam engines "Circleville" and "Buckeye" respectively. In addition the Buckeye Company was in charge of one or two hose carts.

Niagra Hose Company No. 1 consisted of 20 members who had charge of two hose carts. The fourth unit, Scioto Hand Engine Company, was in charge of a hand pump engine, the "Scioto," and two hose trucks. There were thirty members making up this all-Negro force.

One man was on duty at all times. Occasionally others would spend full 24-hour shifts there though not necessarily on duty. Extras could spend the night in makeshift living quarters on the third floor.

Although some report that horses were kept in the municipal building during the time the fire station was there, no historical records indicate their use until after the department moved to their present quarters. Until that time apparently all the equipment was propelled by human muscles.

Steam boilers operated the pumps on the "Buckeye" and "Circleville." They were always prepared for service, their kindling set and ready to ignite at any time. When an alarm was sounded one of the firemen would start the fire in each boiler and have the coal blazing and a full head of steam in three to five minutes.

When they returned from a call, the men would clear the fireboxes and reset the kindling. Then they would be ready for another blaze. At times they had to return along their path to a fire and put out all the blazes started by the sparks from their engines.

Water was available from any of the 37 cisterns located in various strategic spots all over the town, usually in the intersections. Each held about 1,000 barrels of water and were filled by the large tanks which were used to sprinkle the dirt streets to keep the dust down. The canal and Hargus Creek were also used.

Alarms were often called in on one of the several call boxes dotting the town. The one man on duty would note the location of the blaze and alert the rest of the force with the fire bell.

An elaborate code system was used to inform the men of the fire's site with the bell. Each area of town had a special number from 10 to 30 or more. The officer on duty would tap out the code on the bell so the men would know the general vicinity of the blaze.

There was even a riot alarm code of 88. In case of some civil disturbance, such as coal miners strikes in Athens or some similar problem, the townspeople would be alerted to offer aid.

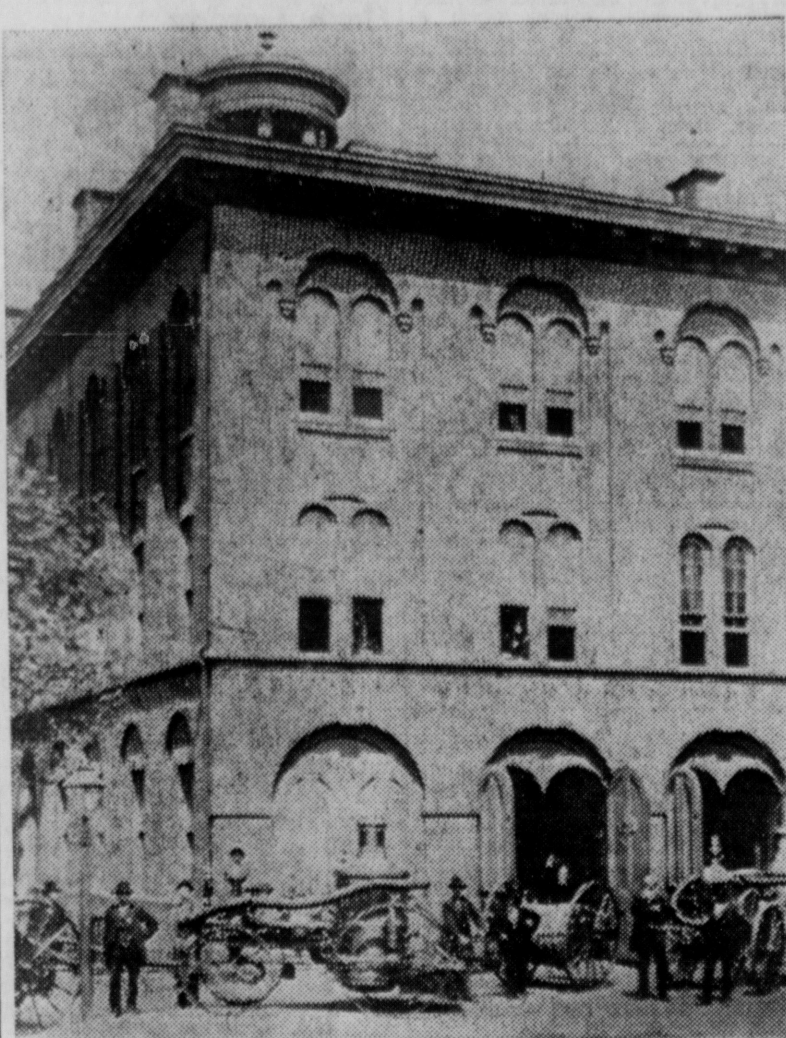

The bell in the tower was operated electrically with a key similar to that used in a telegraph office. When the fire station was moved to the new site on Franklin Street in 1883 the key was moved there also. The bell on city hall continued to alert the citizens in time of fire long after even though there was a bell tower on the new station.

IN 1881, under Mayor Abram Millet, the volunteer force was discontinued and the present system of a paid force went into effect. There were six men on duty where 130 men had been. They still depended much on volunteer service in time of emergencies.

Members of the first paid force were: Chief Levi Hammel, Engineer Andrew Rudel, Assistant Engineer J. M. Baer who later became chief, Stoker William Todd and Drivers James Trego and William Johnson. The chief was in charge only in time of fire. The engineer would head the department at all other times. Chief Hammel also had duty as night policeman and was required to patrol the town in the evenings. All firemen had police powers in time of a fire or during parades.

With the disbanding of the volunteer force, a lot of the excitement went out of the city's firefighting system and with the move to the new station, the city building slipped into a quieter and less colorful situation, succumbing to groceries and then office space.

FIRE ARMY — Only the best in equipment was used by this early fire department to protect Roundtown from the ravages of fire. And what these early fire fighters may have lacked in facilities they made up for in manpower, employing some 130 volunteers. Shown on display before city hall are the steam pumps and hose carts used during the mid and late 1800's and some of the men who operated them. All this equipment was pulled by hand to the scene of a blaze when the bell in the tower atop the municipal building changed its alarm.

The Children's Corner

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Pickaway County Public Library has a section devoted to books for children. Volumes recently added to the Children's Library are reviewed here.

Meindert de Jong is one of the most successful writers for children in the world today. Not only has he produced large numbers of books, but the quality of his writing is consistently high.

He was born in the Netherlands and his Dutch background is evident in most of his output. In World War II, he served as a sergeant in the United States Air Force. He now resides in Guanajuato, Mexico, a full time author. He is married.

Mr. de Jong calls himself the "runner uppingist guy" in the history of the Newberry, for his books have placed second several times. But this is not to say he is not a winner. His list of awards is a staggering one. It includes the Newberry prize as well as those of the German Deutscher Kinderbuchpreis, the Children's Book Award of the Child Study Association of America, the Arianne Award of the American Library Association, the International Hans Christian Andersen Award. Horn Book has published several of his acceptance speeches.

While he writes only for children, he says, "After some twenty books, I still have no idea of the age, school grade, and state of literacy of the child for whom I write. I write not only out of myself, but also for myself, necessarily shaping the work only to my particular cage of artistic form." Meindert de Jong is the kind of writer of whom Walter de la Mare was speaking when he said: "Only the rarest kind of best is good enough for the young."

Among the de Jong books in the Pickaway County Library are: "Along Came a Dog," "Bells of the Harbor," "The Big Goose and the Little White Duck," his first published work, "Billy and the Unhappy Bull," "Far Out the Long Canal," "The House of Sixty Fathers," a winner, "Hurry Home, Candy," "Journey from Peppermint Street," his latest, "The Little Cow and the Turtle," "Nobody Plays with a Cabbage," "Shadrach," "The Tower by the Sea," and "The Wheel on the School," perhaps his most popular book of all.

There is fresh air and cleanliness in the de Jong books. They are difficult to classify since, as he says himself, he writes for no specific reading level, yet they are of such an excellent quality that almost all boys and girls, once exposed to them, strive to read them.

Although some report that horses were kept in the municipal building during the time the fire station was there, no historical records indicate their use until after the department moved to their present quarters. Until that time apparently all the equipment was propelled by human muscles.

Steam boilers operated the pumps on the "Buckeye" and "Circleville." They were always prepared for service, their kindling set and ready to ignite at any time. When an alarm was sounded one of the firemen would start the fire in each boiler and have the coal blazing and a full head of steam in three to five minutes.

When they returned from a call, the men would clear the fireboxes and reset the kindling. Then they would be ready for another blaze. At times they had to return along their path to a fire and put out all the blazes started by the sparks from their engines.

Water was available from any of the 37 cisterns located in various strategic spots all over the town, usually in the intersections. Each held about 1,000 barrels of water and were filled by the large tanks which were used to sprinkle the dirt streets to keep the dust down. The canal and Hargus Creek were also used.

Alarms were often called in on one of the several call boxes dotting the town. The one man on duty would note the location of the blaze and alert the rest of the force with the fire bell.

An elaborate code system was used to inform the men of the fire's site with the bell. Each area of town had a special number from 10 to 30 or more. The officer on duty would tap out the code on the bell so the men would know the general vicinity of the blaze.

There was even a riot alarm code of 88. In case of some civil disturbance, such as coal miners strikes in Athens or some similar problem, the townspeople would be alerted to offer aid.

The bell in the tower was operated electrically with a key similar to that used in a telegraph office. When the fire station was moved to the new site on Franklin Street in 1883 the key was moved there also. The bell on city hall continued to alert the citizens in time of fire long after even though there was a bell tower on the new station.

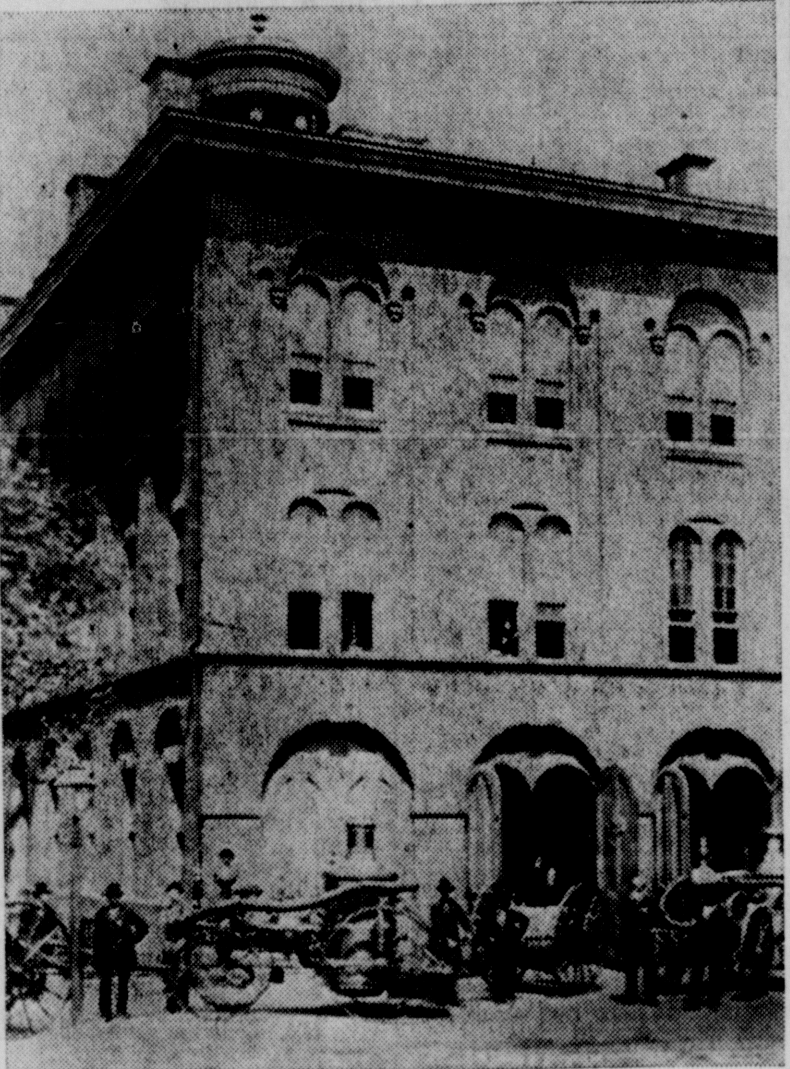

In 1881, under Mayor Abram Millet, the volunteer force was discontinued and the present system of a paid force went into effect. There were six men on duty where 130 men had been. They still depended much on volunteer service in time of emergencies.

Members of the first paid force were: Chief Levi Hammel, Engineer Andrew Rudel, Assistant Engineer J. M. Baer who later became chief, Stoker William Todd and Drivers James Trego and William Johnson. The chief was in charge only in time of fire. The engineer would head the department at all other times. Chief Hammel also had duty as night policeman and was required to patrol the town in the evenings. All firemen had police powers in time of a fire or during parades.

With the disbanding of the volunteer force, a lot of the excitement went out of the city's firefighting system and with the move to the new station, the city building slipped into a quieter and less colorful situation, succumbing to groceries and then office space.

FIRE ARMY — Only the best in equipment was used by this early fire department to protect Roundtown from the ravages of fire. And what these early fire fighters may have lacked in facilities they made up for in manpower, employing some 130 volunteers. Shown on display before city hall are the steam pumps and hose carts used during the mid and late 1800's and some of the men who operated them. All this equipment was pulled by hand to the scene of a blaze when the bell in the tower atop the municipal building changed its alarm.

The Children's Corner

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Pickaway County Public Library has a section devoted to books for children. Volumes recently added to the Children's Library are reviewed here.

Meindert de Jong is one of the most successful writers for children in the world today. Not only has he produced large numbers of books, but the quality of his writing is consistently high.

He was born in the Netherlands and his Dutch background is evident in most of his output. In World War II, he served as a sergeant in the United States Air Force. He now resides in Guanajuato, Mexico, a full time author. He is married.

Mr. de Jong calls himself the "runner uppingst guy" in the history of the Newberry, for his books have placed second several times. But this is not to say he is not a winner. His list of awards is a staggering one. It includes the Newberry prize as well as those of the German Deutscher Kinderbuchpreis, the Children's Book Award of the Child Study Association of America, the Arianne Award of the American Library Association, the International Hans Christian Anderson Award. Horn Book has published several of his acceptance speeches.

While he writes only for children, he says, "After some twenty books, I still have no idea of the age, school grade, and state of literacy of the child for whom I write. I write not only out of myself, but also for myself, necessarily shaping the work only to my particular cage of artistic form." Meindert de Jong is the kind of writer of whom Walter de la Mare was speaking when he said: "Only the rarest kind of best is good enough for the young."

Among the de Jong books in the Pickaway County Library are: "Along Came a Dog", "Bells of the Harbor", "The Big Goose and the Little White Duck", his first published work, "Billy and the Unhappy Bull", "Far Out the Long Canal", "The House of Sixty Fathers", a winner, "Hurry Home, Candy", "Journey from Peppermint Street", his latest, "The Little Cow and the Turtle", "Nobody Plays with a Cabbage", "Shadrach", "The Tower by the Sea", and "The Wheel on the School", perhaps his most popular book of all.

There is fresh air and cleanliness in the de Jong books. They are difficult to classify since, as he says himself, he writes for no specific reading level, yet they are of such an excellent quality that almost all boys and girls, once exposed to them, strive to read them.
